

WALL STREET PROFITS ARE TAKEN AFTER STOCK RISE

Sharp Reactions in Some High-Priced Specialties Unsettle Market — New Highs Early.

TWO COPPER SHARES AT NEW PEAKS LATE

Credit Situation Distinctly Easier, Call Money Rate Dropping After Lower Renewal Basis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Prices
York Stock Exchange today. After strong opening, heavy profit taking cancelled many gains and ended prices largely irregular. The copper and rails made substantial gains, while a long list of industrials, specialties and oils closed lower.

General Electric, which jumped 24 points yesterday, sold at 15 at one time today, and lost 10 of its gain. Greene was a strong point, closing nearly 10 points higher. Montgomery-Ward and Wright Aero ended about 5 each.

While most observers viewed the stock as a natural correction of temporary overheating, speculative element, some selling also is believed to have been influenced by news of a large increase in loans, a possible advance in the Federal reserve discount rate.

Loans to brokers and dealers
by New York Federal Reserve banks for the week ending Jan. 2 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board today as $10,000,000 representing an increase of $2,000,000 over the preceding week.

Delay of 44 minutes in the stock ticker time just before 1 p.
also inspired profit-taking, because of the virtual impossibility of keeping promptly informed of movements on the floor. Such days in the past frequently have been utilized to advantage by traders who have been able to take recessions of several points speculative losses before sufficient buying support could be organized to stem the decline.

Effortful efforts were made to hold the large volume of selling in final hour by pushing up industrial shares. Radio rallied to 140 against 139 before. Western moved up 5 points and Gill-Safety Razor 5. Some of the representative issues met selling on the rallies. The closing was irregular.

When approximated 5,000,000 shares were sold.

New peaks were touched in the dealings by Anaconda and Copper Cananea Copper and Public Service of New Jersey.

The credit situation was distinctly easier, call money renewed at 1/2 cent, against 1 1/2 yesterday. Loans in the "outside" were available as low as 1/2 cent. Time money rates were an easier undertone, but will well above the corresponding rates a year ago.

Little in News.

Outside the money situation, there was little in the day's business to influence the price movement. Directors of the Bon Co. declared an extra dividend of 1 cent on the Class B common stock, and several favorable earnings reports and analysts made their appearance.

General Electric, which soared 24 points yesterday, was first stock to break today, losing 15 1/2 points to 220. Radio, which was up 12 1/2 points to 407
the morning, fell back to 400, losing half its early gain of 10 points and Montgomery-Ward, Agents and Burroughs Adding lost 5 to 7 1/2 points because of their final quotations.
This period, there was no rebound.

General Electric was an outstanding spot at one time, stepping nearly 9 points to a new high of 244 1/2. Warner Bros. Picture Exchange, Warren Bros.
Carmichael & Strauss sold 5 to 7 points higher. Closings were at demand. General Electric was in demand. General blocks of 5000 to 12,000 shares changed hands in the early morning.

ROBBER KILLED, ANOTHER SHOT IN $10,000 HOLDUP

Of Three Who Locked Employees in Vault and Looted Bank at Mexico, Mo., Only One Escapes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MEXICO, Mo., Jan. 3.—One of three robbers who held up the First National Bank here early this afternoon, is dead, another has been wounded and captured and a posse is reported to be closing in around the third near Auxvasse, 12 miles south of here.

The car in which the robbers were fleeing was fired on at Auxvasse by Bert Middleton, night marshal, and Walter Johnson, a garage man, who had been notified of the Mexico robbery by telephone. The robber hit was the driver of the machine.

Shot through the head, he managed to keep control of the car for a mile out of Auxvasse. Then it ran into a ditch and overturned.
His two companions fled on foot, but a hastily assembled posse overtook and shot one of them.

The driver of the robbers' machine was taken to Callaway County Hospital at Fulton but died before he reached there. The second robber was brought back to Mexico while the posse continued its search for the third.

Between $10,000 and $20,000, estimated to have been taken in the bank robbery, is reported to have been recovered in the robbers' wrecked car. It was a yellow Buick coupe and bore Missouri license plates, although Michigan tags were found in a pocket inside.

The First National Bank was held up at 1:45 p. m. The robbers fled after locking Ralph Cauthorn, cashier; W. C. Blatter, assistant cashier; two bookkeepers and several bank customers in the vault.

HOUSE VOTES TO HIRE CLERK FOR EACH OF ITS MEMBERS

Democrats as Well as Republicans to Be Provided for in This Respect.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 3.—For the first time in the history of the Missouri Legislature, each member of the House will have a clerk at this session. Heretofore each member on the majority side had a clerk and one or two clerks were allotted to the minority as a whole.
The Republican caucus today rejected a resolution giving each Democrat as well as each Republican a clerk.

Representative Bales of Shannon County, a Democrat, objected and offered an amendment to limit the clerks to Republican members.
His colleagues would not stand with him, however, and his amendment was defeated.

SENATE TAKES UP TREATY AFTER CRUISER PLEA

Hale Makes Address on Behalf of Measure for 15 Vessels to Aid U. S. Defense.

BORAH GETS FLOOR FOR PEACE PROJECT

Chairman of Naval Committee Says Nation Will Need Ships Even if Protocol Passes.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—In opening the fight today for the cruiser program, Chairman Frederick Hale of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee declared that the Kellogg multilateral treaty should be ratified by the Senate.
Asserting he was confident the peace pact would be ratified, he insisted, however, that he would not favor ratification if such action committed the Government to neglect proper national defense.

The Kellogg treaty was taken up late in the day without a record vote, on motion of Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee. After Hale had concluded his address, Borah gained the floor amid applause from several women in the gallery. Vice President Davies put the motion and there was no opposition.

Before Hale began his speech, Senator Reed of Missouri, opponent of an unreserved peace, announced that he would be opposed to let the Kellogg treaty have precedence over the cruiser bill. Hale replied that he had been informed that at the conclusion of his address Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee would have the floor for consideration of the treaty.

"Then, in plain, blunt speech, the cruiser bill will be laid aside by the chairman in charge to give the treaty right of way," Reed observed, and prepared to leave the chamber in disgust.

Treaty Aided Temporarily.
"Only temporarily," Hale replied. "If the treaty is not ratified in a reasonable time, I reserve the right to call for consideration of my bill."

The construction program as passed by the House calls for 15 cruisers costing $17,000,000 each and one aircraft carrier costing $19,000,000, all to be laid down in three years. These vessels, Hale declared, were for replacement and should not be considered as the foundation for a "superior" navy that would incite other nations to increase their own naval armament.

Even the addition of these ships would not bring the United States within "measurable distance" of the 5-5-3 ratio decreed at the Washington disarmament conference, he added. The replacements, Hale continued, while primarily necessary for the protection of American commerce, also would insure the rights of neutrals in event of war.
Fortified with a map of the Pacific Ocean, Hale showed that the numerous naval bases of Great Britain and other nations protect its commerce with small cruisers, which were unsuitable for American needs.

Says Navy Will Be Needed.
"The present situation of the navy is not in any way changed by the passage of the multilateral treaty," Hale said. "There is nothing in the wording of the treaty, as interpreted by the President, or in the notes exchanged between the various governments parties to it, that in any way prohibits the right of self-defense. Indeed, the exercise of these rights is expressly excluded in certain of the notes from the operation of the treaty has always been to maintain a navy for defensive purposes. We do not need, and with the will of the American people for peace, shall we not need, a navy for purposes of aggression. As long as our homes are capable of being attacked by the sea, and our foreign possessions and our home and foreign business, we have little to fear from outside aggression. If powerful enough to withstand such outside aggression, we can remain confident that we shall not be attacked nor our rights invaded."

"Is must always be remembered, however, that a defensive navy, after war is declared, must as soon as possible take the offensive and destroy the navy and commerce of the country with which it is at war if the war is to be brought to a conclusion. The possible offensive of the defensive navy must at all times be kept in mind and prepared for."

"The naval strength of the five

CLEMENCY DENIED MURDERED MAN'S WIDOW AND SUITOR

Only Insanity Showing Can Save Mrs. Ada Leboeuf and Dr. Thomas F. Dreher
From Gallows.

SCHEDULED TO BE HANGED SATURDAY

Louisiana Governor Refuses Appeals for Pair Who Killed Woman's Husband at Lake Palourde in 1927.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 3.—
Only an insanity plea and the State Supreme Court today stood between the hangman's noose and Mrs. Ada Leboeuf and Dr. Thomas F. Dreher, sentenced to death for the murder of the woman's husband, James Leboeuf.

Gov. Huey P. Long last night declined to commute the death penalty of the pair to life imprisonment, which had been recommended by the State Pardon Board after the prisoners' appeals to State and Federal Supreme courts had failed.

With the hope of aid from the Governor gone, counsel planned to appear before Judge James D. Silmon, who presided at the trial, and request an inquiry by a sanity commission into the present mental states of Mrs. Leboeuf and Dreher.
If this move fails, counsel planned to apply to the State Supreme Court to halt the execution until a hearing can be held.

The execution is set for Saturday between noon and 3 p. m.
The application for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment was rejected by the Governor in a 5000-word statement, in which he cited the brutality of the murder. The statement mentioned the Leopold-Loeb case as an example of the evil of life imprisonment, saying that while "their existence in Joliet penitentiary is one of pleasure and abandonment," the result is shown by Chicago statistics listing 527 persons killed last year, against 476 the year before.

"But one thing remains," continued the statement, "to save this country from an increasing crime wave and reckless destruction of human life, an unswerving policy of enforcement not only by State officials but by upholding citizenship of this country. In this case a commutation of sentence would be opening the doors of the State wide to those who lightly regard human life. I fail to find one single condition of extenuating circumstances which would justify my thwarting the course of the law as has prevailed in this State and this country for centuries past."

James Leboeuf was murdered
July 1, 1927, in a boat on Lake Palourde. The body was slashed, weighted and sunk in the lake.
Mrs. Leboeuf would be the first white woman to go to the gallows in Louisiana and one of the few women of any race to pay the extreme penalty in the State.

Dr. Dreher before the crime stood out in the Morgan City community scene of the crime as a leader in his capacity as family physician and druggist.

Mrs. Leboeuf and Dreher testified that James Beadle, a trapper, had fired the shot which killed the woman's husband. Beadle, in turn, charged the physician with the murder. The three were tried together, and Beadle was found guilty with recommendation of life sentence, which he is now serving.

Lieutenant-Governor Criticizes Executive, Backs "Judicial Murder."
By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3.—In an interview given to the New Orleans States, Lieutenant-Governor Paul N. Cyr, a member of the State Pardon Board, said today that Gov. Long had "double crossed" him in refusing to grant commutation in the Leboeuf-Dreher case and that the hanging of this man and woman would be "judicial murder."

"Gov. Long talks about his responsibilities and his oath of office in that 5000-word statement he issued last night," Cyr said. "It's a pity he didn't remember something about that responsibility and his oath of office, if he thinks hanging is necessary, when he per-mited John Pleasant Harris of New Orleans recently."

He compared the two cases, saying Harris was a notorious member of the New Orleans underworld, quarrelled with a woman, chased her into the street and shot her to death in plain sight of the office of the Superintendent of Police. He was found guilty by a jury and sentenced to hang by a judge. In the Leboeuf-Dreher case both had led useful lives until they got into this trouble. Both raised respectable families.

"Yet Mrs. Leboeuf and Dr. Dreher are being hanged for the same crime."

O'FALLON CASE ATTACKING I. C. C. RAIL VALUATIONS OPENS IN SUPREME COURT

Harry Lehr at the Height of Fashionable Career in New York

WRONG FORMULA USED, D. N. KIRBY TELLS JURISTS

Counsel for Railway Replying to Questions of Judges, Says Right to Fix Value Is Unchallenged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Before a crowded courtroom, argument was begun this afternoon in the Supreme Court in the suit of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railway, attacking the valuation methods of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The argument was opened by Daniel N. Kirby of St. Louis for the railroad. He had hardly started before several members of the Court pined him with questions to determine whether it was insisted that the question of the validity of the valuation of the railroad property by the Commission was the main issue. He maintained that while there were other questions at issue the validity of the Commission's valuation was the principal issue.

Justice Van Devanter indicated that the Court, in another case, had acted upon the question of the valuation of railroad property by the Commission, and asked to know whether it was being asked to review that decision. Kirby replied that no attempt was being made to challenge the right of the Commission to value railroad property. The action of the Commission was being challenged only to the extent of asserting that its valuation in the O'Fallon case was invalid, because based on a wrong formula.

3 Former Cabinet Men in Case.
The O'Fallon, a 10-mile railroad, came into court to argue its contention that the Commission's procedure in attempting to recapture excess earnings was invalid.
Three men, who served in the Cabinet of Chief Justice Taft while Taft was President, are among the counsel in the case—Walter L.
Fisher, George W. Wickensham and Charles Nagel. Fisher and Wickensham are on the side of the Government, while Nagel is a member of the railroad's counsel.

No controversy in recent years has attracted wider attention in business circles, where the compelling influence of valuation as the basis for Government regulation of rates is of vital importance.
Recognizing the magnitude of the issue, the Court set aside six and a quarter hours for argument, and in compliance with a Senate resolution, permitted Donald R. Rice, a general counsel for the National Conference on Valuation of American Railroads, to file a brief and to participate in the oral discussion.

Lawyers Divided in Opinion.
Among lawyers in the case there is a sharp difference of opinion as to whether the railroad, in view of the lower court decision in favor of the Government, can present a case which will bring a sweeping decision on the whole valuation fabric of the Commerce Commission.

Government and commission counsel, in their briefs, asserted that should the railroad succeed in its contention with regard to the method to be followed in the valuation of its property for rate-making and other regulatory purposes, there would be a marked increase in railroad rates generally, but this was flatly denied by the railroad which declared that rates were necessarily limited by what the traffic could bear.

The St. Louis & O'Fallon, after hearings in 1924 and 1926, was directed by the commission to pay over to the commission part of its earnings during the months in 1926 and during the calendar years 1927, 1928 and 1929, found by the commission to be excessive under the recapture clause of the transportation act. The railroad promptly sought an injunction.

Congressman and Ex-Head of License in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 3.— Harry Lehr, well known for many years in Baltimore, New York and Newport society died today at Johns Hopkins Hospital where he had been a patient for several weeks suffering from a brain disorder. In February last year he underwent a brain tumor operation at Johns Hopkins, the second within a month.

Lehr, son of a one-time German Consul at Baltimore, sprang almost overnight into the position of social favorite of Baltimore, Newport and New York in the late nineties.
His eccentricities and bizarre pranks, under the patronage of va-lourous wealthy social leaders, made him widely known as the "F. T. Barnum of the smart set."

In the late eighties Lehr went to New York from Baltimore, armed with letters of introduction to many famous families. Soon he became a favorite of the late Mrs.
William Astor, then leader of America's smart set, and of the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

Lehr was given leave to arrange parties for the smart set, despite the fact that he began as an agent for a champagne company. At many of these parties he appeared dressed in women's clothes. He performed fancy dances, led cotillions, entertained with brilliant repertory. Once he waded in a fountain at midnight in full evening dress, with a wealthy social leader, also fully dressed.

In June, 1901, Lehr married
Mrs. John Vinton Dahlgren, a widow and formerly a Drexel of Philadelphia. The marriage in St.
Patrick's Cathedral was a brilliant event. All of the ushers were wealthy social leaders. On the wedding day Grace Church James A. Sullivan married Anne Urquhart Potter.

Several years after the marriage the Lehrs went abroad and took up residence in Paris. They gave brilliant fetes and Lehr occupied much the same position he had abandoned in America. When the war began, Lehr devoted all his time to hospital work for wounded soldiers.

LEGISLATURE TO OPPOSE PROGRAM OF REFORM BILLS

Proposed Budget System and Other Associated Industries' Measures Get Setback in Organization.

PARKER AND CASEY OPPOSITION CHIEFS

Unless Caulfield Gives Economy and Efficiency Plans His Support, They Are Doomed.

By CURTIS A. BEITS, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 3.—The election of Jones H. Parker of St. Louis as Speaker of the House of Representatives yesterday, as an anti-Associated Industries' candidate, is a serious blow to the association's program of State governmental reforms, and as the situation now shapes up prospects for adoption by the Legislature of a budget system, creation of a central purchasing department and consolidation of related departments are extremely remote.

The program could be saved, probably, if Governor-elect Caulfield should make it an administration issue and fight for it aggressively. No perfunctory endorsement in the Governor's message of the budget system and the other proposals to accomplish economy and efficiency would be expected to turn the tide. He would have to make it the big work of the administration, and place the full pressure of administration influence behind it, even to the extent of use of the common but questionable practice of trading appointments and threats of the use of the veto on legislators' bills.

The Governor-elect is on record in favor of the budget system and the program generally of the Associated Industries, but he has given no intimation that the exact measures prepared by the association have his approval. What he may say in his inaugural message on the subject has not been disclosed.

Unless he takes up the fight, it would appear now that the Association might as well pack up its bills and file them away, as the jolt it received in the House organization, and in the Senate organization, as well as a severe one.

The issue was not drawn in the Senate organization, because the selection of officers there was a cut and dried affair and there was no contest, but the fact remains that the group closely associated with Senator Casey of Kansas City, who was elected president pro-tem, is of the practical politician type, which is exposed to any innovation which would change the political spoils system of control of governmental affairs.

But in the House organization there was virtually no other question than the Associated Industries. Though there was little basis for the charge, E. A. Duensing, leading candidate for the Speakership at the outset of the contest, was labeled the "Associated Industries' candidate," and he was unable to meet the issue, Parker, entering the fight with very little strength, seized upon the issue and fought with it, having the assistance of Secretary of State Charles U. Becker, leader of the State jobholders' lobby against governmental reform.

Their efforts were quickly effective and it was known yesterday that Duensing's strength was falling off, due to losses of rural supporters, who were frightened away from him by the cry that he was the "big business" candidate.

Besides the indication that there is strong opposition to the Associated Industries' participation in legislative affairs, there is a very practical injury to the program through the selection of Casey and Parker.

They will appoint all of the committees of their respective houses, including the committees to which will be referred the association's bills. It may be taken as a virtual certainty that neither will name a committee which will report favorably on them.

While committees may not be quite as powerful in smothering legislation as they were a few years ago, it requires a very much interested majority in the House or Senate to take a bill away from the committee and get it onto the floor for action, if the committee is opposed to reporting it.

The Governor might possibly build up this strength if he cared to do so, and it is to him, rather than to the Legislature, that the association and those interested in breaking the hold of the spoilsman of politics on the State Treasury must direct their attention if they expect to make any progress.

GOV. BAKER DELIVERS LAST MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE

Denies There Is $600,000 Deficit in Penitentiary and Ignores Scandals in Regime.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Baker, who retired from office Jan. 14, today delivered his final message to the Legislature.

In a 6500-word message he had only praise for himself and his appointees. By a peculiar process of figuring he turned the recently reported $600,000 deficit in the penitentiary into a balance on the right side of the ledger.

The Insurance Department, in which a scandal resulted from the collapse of the International Life Insurance Co. after the department had prevented an examination of the company when it was being looted, became, in the Governor's message, the basis for praise because, he said, "the policy holders have been fully protected (through reinsurance) and have not been called upon to make a contribution of one cent, nor has it been necessary to place liens against their policies."

The Governor ignored the financial scandal at the State Hospital at Nevada, resulting from his political interference with the State Eleemosynary Board's control of employees, and took credit for the improvement in conditions, recently explained in the Post-Dispatch.

In conclusion, the Governor said he was leaving the office "without any apology whatever, feeling in my own consciousness that I have always worked for the people of the State and have done my best to accomplish results that would be constructive rather than destructive."

In discussing the financial condition of the State, he said there would be a balance of approximately $1,000,000 in the general revenue fund of the State at the close of his administration, because collections of inheritance and income taxes were larger than had been expected, and he said, because of economies practiced by himself and other officials. He had conducted his office on $10,000 less than the amount appropriated, and the executive mansion on $5000 less, he said.

her must hang, says Gov. Long. And John Pleasant Harris, ex-convict, gambler, unmarried, must not be hanged."

Judge James D. Simon, who presided at the trial, granted a hearing for tomorrow morning on a plea for a commission to determine the prisoners' sanity. Their counsel announced that if the hearing is unfavorable an attempt will be made to obtain a mandamus from the State Supreme Court to compel Judge Simon to grant the sanity inquiry.

Gov. Long stated in reply to Cyr that he had spent 200 hours talking the case over with Cyr and had heard no sound argument. The dentist and Mrs. Leboeuf were reported to be on the verge of collapse today after they heard that commutation had been refused and reiterated that James Beadle killed Leboeuf. The State contended that Beadle, who is serving a life term, was an accomplice.

Member of Committee Wants 50 Firms to Send Aircraft.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Fifty commercial operating commercial airplanes throughout the country were asked today by Paul Henderson, special member of the Parade Committee of the Hoover Inauguration Committee, to send planes to participate in the March 4 ceremonies.

The plan is to have the machines in the air at one time, to circle the capitol, double back and forth over the line of parade, and circle the White House after Hoover enters it as President.

PLANE ALOFT TWO DAYS BREAKS ONE ENDURANCE MARK

Army Flyers in Test Over Los Angeles Surpass American Feat and Now Seek World's Record.

By the Associated Press.
METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—The third day of the refueling endurance flight by the army's monoplane Question Mark began at 7:26 o'clock this morning, just after it had taken on a new supply of fuel from refueling plane No. 2.

The refueling plane, piloted by Lieut. Odas Moon, passed 150 gallons of gasoline to the Question Mark in a six-minute contact here shortly after 7 a. m.

The Question Mark's three motors were reported to be working perfectly after 48 hours of duty. The plane started its flight at 7:26 Tuesday morning.

For a time this morning fog kept the Question Mark away from San Diego and it cruised over the San Fernando Valley until the fog to the South lifted at 10:10 o'clock.

Official reports from San Diego said the Question Mark arrived on Rockwell Field there at 11:45 a. m., and had been refueled.

Difficult Job to Refuel.
About an hour and a half of maneuvering on the part of refueling plane No. 2 was necessitated earlier today when the Question Mark soared over the airport and dropped a signal calling for fuel.

Lieut. Moon, pilot of the refueling plane, lost contact in his first attempt and, after landing, took off again to carry 100 gallons up to the ship. He said he found the air extremely rough.

Moon reported that Maj. Carl Spatz, commander aboard the Question Mark, had watched the refueling process carefully and had checked repeatedly with another member of the crew stationed at the fuel tanking and previous ground officers assumed the Question Mark had accumulated a reserve supply of gasoline from the frequent refuellings and that it did not need the full 170 gallons which Moon had taken up.

The Question Mark surpassed the time record set in the only previous American refueling endurance flight at 8:45 o'clock last night, and the next goal was the world's endurance record of 60 hours, 7 minutes, which can be broken by flight until 9:31 o'clock tonight.

Several changes of routine have been ordered to meet changed and unexpected flying conditions in the present test. Refueling plane No. 2 used this morning and previous nights in readiness for an emergency at the Imperial Valley airport, was brought back to the Metropolitan Airport yesterday on orders from Maj. Spatz.

He dropped a note expressing doubt of the practicability of crossing the mountains to Imperial Valley in the heavy monoplane, and ordered Lieut. Moon to bring his plane here to take up regular refueling operations, which has been handled solely by the first plane at San Diego.

To Refuel Regularly at Night.
It also was definitely learned last night that night refueling would be added regularly to the routine, as the heavy ship was consuming more gasoline than expected.

This necessitated rearrangement of the hours on duty for the three pilots aboard, and also caused readjustment of hours for sleeping when off duty.

At the cruising speed of about 70 miles an hour, which was maintained, the ship, if flying in a straight line, early today would have passed New York and been out over the Atlantic.

Because of circling over the airports in the refueling operations, however, the average speed has been reduced to less than 50 miles an hour. If the flyers keep the plane in the air 200 hours they will fly a distance nearly equal to the circumference of the earth.

Sprayed With Gasoline.
Today's difficulty in refueling was the second experienced, trouble having been encountered early yesterday when gasoline sprayed the ship, causing cabin fumes which lasted for hours. Maj. Spatz was sprayed on the face and hands and received first aid treatment. He was not seriously affected, however, as a few hours after messages dropped reported he relieved

Woman Falls on Walk, Dies.
Miss Elizabeth Becker, 68 years old, 5717 South Grand boulevard, collapsed on the sidewalk at 527 West Davis street yesterday and was carried by passersby to a house nearby where she died. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause of death.

CONDITION OF KING SHOWS NO CHANGE; PASSES FAIR DAY

Patient Was Restless Last Night, Doctors' Morning Report Said—Calcium Is Continued.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 3.—A bulletin timed 8 o'clock tonight, issued by Dr. Hewett, Dr. Rigby and Lord Dawson, said of King George:

"The King had a fair day and there is no change to report in His Majesty's condition."

The morning medical bulletin reported no change in the King's condition. His night was a restless one and to this fact his failure to continue the improvement reported last night presumably might be attributed.

The public had been warned, however, that the King's progress would be very slow.

The doctors at 11:15 a. m. today issued this bulletin:

The King has passed a restless night and there is no change to report in His Majesty's condition.

It is understood that the calcium treatment is to be continued. An officer on the medical side of a big manufacturing chemists' establishment said of this: "It is a new method of treatment not yet recorded in the medical textbooks."

The officer explained that the patient took the treatment in the form of soluble salt of calcium. The simplest way was by the mouth, but this was generally a slow method of getting into the blood stream. Otherwise it can be injected in a diluted form by an ordinary hypodermic syringe into the veins.

The purpose of the treatment, he continued, is to raise the lowered calcium content in the blood to normal. He described the operation as quite simple.

MORTALITY OF MILLIONAIRES

Death Duties in Britain Double Figure for 1927.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Mortality among British millionaires was unduly heavy last year. While regrettable for several reasons, the unusually heavy toll provided considerable relief to the exchequer.

Death duties in 1927 produced $150,000,000 whereas $300,000,000 was yielded in the last nine months of 1928.

The estate of Sir George Wills, tobacco magnate, was probated at $5,000,000 and yielded to the treasury $20,000,000 duty. With this the other large estate paid nearly $50,000,000 in taxes.

Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada at the controls, Quesada had been slightly affected by the fumes.

The ship's log, dropped here in sections, said that Sgt. Roy Hoop, plane mechanic, who thus far has occupied his time in transfer of gasoline from fuselage to wing tanks, got a full six hours' sleep during the first night's flight. Orders are for the men to take a sponge bath and exercise daily. Hot food is sent aloft for them by the refueling planes.

Other members of the crew are Capt. Ira Eaker and Lieut. Halverson, both pilots.

Hale Urges Both Peace Treaty and Cruiser Bill

great naval powers in the world needs to be purely relative. It should be possible to cut down proportionately the naval strength of these five great powers, and that is what the United States has sought to do along the lines of the ratio provided in the Washington treaty. We shall doubtless continue our attempts in this direction at the conference which takes place under the terms of the Washington treaty, in 1931."

In summing up the reasons for protection of American commerce, Hale said: "When you consider that our country is the richest and most prosperous country in the world, our aggregate wealth being greater than that of any other half dozen nations in the world combined, that our foreign commerce is the equal of that of any other country in the world, and reached the stupendous figure of $9,000,000 a year, that we are the acknowledged money center of the world, and that with all these advantages we are naturally an object of envy to the rest of the world, and then when you further consider that our coast line is greater by far than that of any other naval Power in the world, that our outlying naval stations, especially those at Panama and Pearl Harbor, are situated at a great distance from the mainland, and that their defense is of essentially vital importance to our mainland security and our coastwise trade, and, lastly, that we are creditors to the extent of many billions of dollars to three of the four other naval Powers, it would not be assuming too much for us to take the position that our vast interests should be protected by the most powerful navy in the world. We could very well afford to keep up such a navy without materially crippling our national resources, should we see fit so to do, but we do not see fit so to do."

Reviews Previous Efforts.
Hale reviewed at length the various attempts made by the United States to reduce armaments. He asserted that if the 1916 program had been carried through to completion, this country would have had a navy that could have withstood the combined navies of the world. He pointed out that at the Washington conference, the United States accepted this program together with an actual investment of $150,000,000.

Commenting on the failure of the Geneva conference, he said: "We went into the Geneva conference in an honest attempt to bring about a further limitation of armament. We figured that in the Washington conference, almost the entire sacrifice had been made by ourselves. In the Geneva conference we hoped that Great Britain, which was in much the same position in regard to cruisers at that time that we occupied in regard to capital ships at the time of the Washington conference, would sacrifice her cruiser superiority as a superiority, but we hoped in vain. The shoe was now very much on the other foot."

Lays Failure to England.
"We were not at all second conference in the lordly position that we occupied at the first one. We have no great partially completed program that we are willing to sacrifice in the interests of world economy. We are asking another country to assume that role and the other country did not feel that it could assume it, so the conference failed, as all such conferences in the future will fail unless the nation which has come to the top is willing to give up that advantage for some reason which it seems justifiable.

"We were able to bring the Washington conference to a more or less successful conclusion because we were on top at that time. Great Britain could have done the same thing at the Geneva conference at the price of sacrificing her cruiser superiority."

"I cannot see how the American position, which calls for the right to build cruisers of any size and armament up to the treaty limitation, can at any further conference on limitation of armament be modified without giving up all possibility of maintaining a navy equal to that of any other country in the world."

Would Encourage Treaties.
Continuing, the Maine Senator said: "Let us by all means do everything that lies within our power to encourage treaties and agreements that will prevent war and that will result in a proportionate reduction of armament throughout the world, but until we know beyond peradventure of doubt that wars will not occur or until agreements have actually been reached providing for a proportionate reduction in armaments, let us keep up to the full measure of our national needs that arm of the service which must bear the first brunt of any hostile attack and which is the real life insurance of our country—the United States navy."

"Let us no longer gamble on the chances that the life insurance may not be needed."

Replies to Bill's Opponents.
Turning to opponents of the bill, he continued: "The opponents of preparedness in this country who seem to be united in their support of the multilateral treaty are equally united in their opposition to the cruiser bill. Apparently they think that the treaty will entirely do away with wars in the future, and that strong navies are no longer needed."

"They are willing through dependence on the multilateral treaty to allow our navy to fall below the requisite strength of our national needs while the other naval powers instead of falling back are increasing their strength. They condemn any attempt on the part of friends of the cruiser bill to secure its passage at this session of Congress, on the ground that its passage will demonstrate to the rest of the world that we are hypocritical in asking the other nations to join in the multilateral treaty. Should they be wrong in their dependence upon the effect of the multilateral

A second resolution of opinion to the Kellough treaty placed before the Senate by Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, proposed that Great Britain's responsibility in connection with treaty negotiations be not treated as allowing that nation "reserve" in its adherence.

The resolution recited the cause of Great Britain's opposition to the invitation to join the treaty. This was:

"His Majesty's Government has been at pains to make it clear the past that interference in these regions" (designated as vital importance to British Empire) "cannot be suffered. They are against any attack is to the British Empire a measure of defense. It must be clearly understood that his Majesty's Government in Great Britain accept new treaty upon the distinct understanding that it does not preclude their freedom of action or respect."

ROBBED, TIED TO TREE BY MAN AND WOMAN

Fred Spiegel Says Pair Took Auto and $9, Then Left Him in County.

Fred Spiegel, 31 years old, a barber, 4048 Laclede avenue, last night reported to police that he had been held up in his automobile in the city by a man and woman and forced to drive to the south end of St. Louis County, where he was robbed of his automobile and money, and tied to a tree.

"I made a traffic stop at Cass and Garrison avenues, at 3:30 p. m. and gave a lift to a man and woman who were standing there," Spiegel related. "I asked them where they wanted to go. The man drew a revolver. He made me drive down to Broadway and south on Broadway, Lemay Ferry and Telegraph roads to the Catholic White House Retreat grounds. There the woman took the revolver and pressed it against my ribs while the man produced a rope and tied me by the hands to a tree, after taking $9 from my pockets. I protested that I'd freeze, but the man said I could wiggle loose after a while.

"During the ride, the man and woman called each other Frank and Helen. The man said he had to have my car for a certain purpose. He also said he was just out of jail and intended to stay out."

A short time after the pair drove away in Spiegel's car, Spiegel released himself, and went to the boiler room of the retreat house. A priest drove him back to St. Louis. Spiegel said the woman was about 22 years old, a blonde, wearing a light blue coat, black hat and low shoes. The man was about 24.

MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS AFTER DRINKING GIN, DIES

Sister of John Dec, 1703 North Spring, Thinks Liqueur Contained Poison.

An autopsy will be performed today on the body of Ivan Dec, 29 years old, a paper hanger, 1703 North Spring avenue, who died at city hospital yesterday. He was found unconscious near the stairway leading to the home of Gerald Cocoran, 3816A St. Ferdinand avenue, on Dec. 15. Two bottles containing what police report was gin were found beside Dec, who city hospital physicians said had been drinking.

Dec's head and shoulders were bruised and it was thought he had fallen down the stairs. Dec made no statement, other than to say that he had been drinking, but his sister, Mrs. Helen Bergfeld, 2829 North Grand boulevard, told police she thinks the gin had contained poison.

How Gold Prospector "Went Scotch"

Minneapolis, Minn.
April 30, 1928

Larus & Bro. Co.
Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

Two years ago last winter I went into the Red Lake gold fields in Canada. It was a tough trail from Hudson, over 140 miles of snow and ice. There were fourteen of us on the trail going in, and frequently at night when seated around a big camp fire, some one would ask me for a pipeful of Edgeworth. These Canadian boys sure like our Edgeworth.

In four weeks' time I ran out of Edgeworth. I was glad to get 'most any old tobacco.

One day, however, I dropped in to Dad Brown's tent, a 72-year-old prospector, and seeing a can of Edgeworth on an improvised table, back there 150 miles from the "steel," I perked up at once, saying, "Dad, I'm plum out of tobacco—how's chances for a pipeful?" "Help yourself," he said. So pulling my heavy duty pipe from my pocket, I loaded it with Edgeworth, packing it in so tightly that I couldn't get the least bit of a draw.

I excused myself for a moment, and stepped outside to remove about three pipefuls to put in my pouch. Dad stepped out, saying, "You're worse than any Scotchman I ever saw." Then I confessed. I told him what happened to my Edgeworth—that I was just dying for a smoke, and he understood right away. He said, "Boy, Edgeworth is mighty scarce in these parts, but I reckon I can spare what's left of that can. Help yourself." You can just bet your last nickel that I guarded this Edgeworth with extreme care until I got back to the "steel."

Yours very truly,

C. M. Bahr

PAROLES FOR OTTOFY AND BARTON SOUGHT

Trial Judge Objects to Release Till Doctors' Sons Have Served Year for Holdups.

Efforts to obtain paroles for George Ottofy and Lucian Barton, 21-year-old sons of physicians sentenced to five years at Booneville reformatory last Feb. 29 for first-degree robbery on their pleas of guilty are being made by the mothers and friends of the youths.

Former Circuit Attorney Sidener said today that at the request of the mothers he wrote to the State Penal Board recommending, as prosecutor, that Barton and Ottofy be paroled. Circuit Judge Rosskopf, who pronounced sentence, has informed friends of the Ottofy and Barton families, who have sought his assent to leniency, that he would consider such a recommendation only after the prisoners had served one full year of their sentences.

Exemplary prisoners at Booneville sometimes are paroled after eight months if this is recommended by the trial judge. Those guilty of felonies are eligible to release regularly after serving seven-twelfths of their terms, providing their behavior has been good.

Lucian Barton is the son of Dr. Harry R. Barton, 5194 Maple avenue, and George Ottofy the son of Dr. L. M. Ottofy, 5228 Vernon avenue. They had been classmates at Soldan High School. They confessed holding up three filling stations from which they had obtained $212. Judge Rosskopf originally sentenced them to the penitentiary but later, changed the place of imprisonment to Booneville.

"I have been approached several times by friends of the Barton and Ottofy families who sought to gain my recommendation for a parole," Judge Rosskopf said. "I have told them all that regardless of any other circumstances I would not even consider the cases until 12 full months of the terms had been served."

TENNESSEE LAW FIXING PRICE OF GASOLINE INVALID

U. S. Supreme Court Rules That Statute Setting Retain Figure Is Unconstitutional.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—States were held to be powerless to fix the price of gasoline by a ruling of the Supreme Court yesterday, setting aside as invalid such a law in Tennessee.

The Court asserted that it had repeatedly declared that a State Legislature was without constitutional power to fix prices at which commodities may be sold, services rendered or property used, unless the business or property involved was "affected with a public interest."

Its opinion, handed down by Justice Sutherland, to which Justice Holmes dissented, declared that gasoline is one of the ordinary commodities of trade, and that dealing in it, irrespective of its extent, does not affect it with a public interest.

The State of Tennessee had declared gasoline to be a public utility in view of its universal use and indispensability, with the object of meeting the previous decisions of the Supreme Court regarding the fixing of commodity prices.

Monopoly Charge Not Sustained. The claim that the price-fixing law was warranted because the sale of gasoline in Tennessee was monopolized by certain dealers was not sustained by the facts, the Court stated.

Pointing out that the statute had been drawn with a saving clause, which provided it should not fall as a whole should any part be found unconstitutional, the Court reached the conclusion that it was the purpose of the Legislature in enacting the statute to fix the price of gasoline and that the entire act must fall.

The validity of the law was challenged by the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana and the Texas Co. The State of Tennessee asserted that it had been the practice of the large oil producing companies to depress retail prices until competition was removed and then advance the prices to the injury of the consumer.

Unfair Practices Denied. The oil companies denied the unfair practices, insisting that the real purpose of the legislation was not to benefit the ultimate consumer but to keep in business middlemen who were being injured by the producing companies selling directly to filling stations and other retail dealers.

Explaining that the only question the Court had to consider was the power of a Legislature under the Federal Constitution to authorize the State to fix the price of gasoline, the Court asserted that a State had no right to impose on foreign corporations doing business within its borders conditions which require the relinquishment of rights guaranteed by the Federal Constitution.

Reviewing various provisions of the price-fixing law, the Court stated that it was shown conclusively that all were mere adjuncts of the price-fixing section and mere aids in its effective execution. When the price-fixing section fell, it was therefore necessary for the entire act to go down, because there was no reason for collecting data and doing other things provided in the law.

LABOR TROUBLE IN BRAZIL

BELEM, Para, Brazil, Jan. 3.—The newspaper Estado Do Para says the State Government recently sent arms and munitions, including machine guns, to Santarem, at the junction of the Amazon and Tapajós Rivers, to protect the interests of the Henry Ford rubber plantations.

The chief of the state police is investigating a report that the Ford workers are abandoning service because of an alleged lack of food and insufficient wages.

Medical Society Installation. The St. Louis Medical Society will hold its inaugural meeting and a reception for the president in its building at 3839 Lindell boulevard next Tuesday evening. Dr. Cleveland H. Schutt will be installed as president to succeed Dr. Charles Hugh Neilson.

Cold and snow all over France. PARIS, Jan. 3.—Winter prevailed throughout France today, even the sunny South not being spared. The whole provincial region was mantled with snow, making communication difficult by rail and highway. The thermometer was continuing to drop. As a result of a heavy snowstorm in the Avignon district, all trains to Paris were delayed eight hours.

UTILITIES COMBINE REPORTED PENDING INVOLVES BILLION

United Gas Improvement Co. and Electric Bond Corporation Said to Have Made Agreement.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The New York World prints the following despatch from Philadelphia:

The United Gas Improvement Co. of this city and the Electric Bond & Share Securities Corporation of New York, comprising two of the most powerful public utility holding groups in the East, have come to an agreement on an "operating" plan which will have far-reaching effect on the public utility map of the Atlantic seaboard, according to reports current in the local financial district.

Destinies of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, the Northeastern Power Corporation, National Power & Light Co. and Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation are involved in the gigantic "operating" plan reported agreed upon, which has as its final objective the unification of power sources and supply from Genoa, Md., to Niagara Falls, N. Y. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and J. Pierpont Morgan, now in respective control of the financial destinies of United Gas Improvement Co. and Electric Bond & Share Securities Corporation, will be joint financial sponsors of the new alignment, the reports state.

The two corporations involved, it is said, soon will announce changes in capital structure which will facilitate present plans of consolidation and absorption of several of the utilities above mentioned.

Indicative of the tremendous proportions of the reported plan, the two companies involved have a market value of more than $1,100,000,000. United Gas Improvement Co. has outstanding 3,903,791 shares of an authorized 6,000,000-share capital, while Electric Bond & Share Securities Corporation has outstanding 2,403,827 shares. Closing price of United Gas Improvement stock yesterday was $169.25 a share and of Electric Bond & Share Securities Corporation $183 a share.

D. J. KEEFE AND BROTHER
DIE TWO HOURS APART
Former Was Head of Immigration Bureau Under Roosevelt and Taft.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Daniel J. Keefe, 78 years old, former member of the United States Shipping Board, and his brother, Thomas J. Keefe, retired capitalist, are dead here.

Daniel Keefe, for many years vice president of the American Federation of Labor and Commissioner-General of Immigration under Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, died at his home in Elmhurst, a suburb, and Thomas, who started his career with Marshall Field & Co., and later entered the investment business, died two hours later.

His open defiance of President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor won national attention for Daniel Keefe in 1907 and 1908. He openly campaigned for Taft and was reappointed Commissioner-General of Immigration after Taft's election. He is survived by three sons—Walter E. of Monrovia, Cal.; Frank J. of Pasadena, Cal.; and Daniel J. Jr. of Chicago. Thomas Keefe is survived by his widow.

Kills Self Lighting Cigarette. BLITHEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 3.—Funeral services were conducted Monday for George Brice, 25 years old, who was killed when his shotgun was discharged accidentally Sunday while he was hunting with his brother-in-law, Goldie Brice. George rested his shotgun and a foot on a log while he attempted to light a cigarette, and his foot moved the log, causing the weapon to be discharged. Brice leaves his widow and two children.

Sophie Tucker Weds Third Time. By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Sophie Tucker stopped in Chicago yesterday "to have a little fat taken off my face" and incidentally to disclose that she had been married, for the third time, Dec. 14, at Newport, Ky. Reporters found her at the office of a plastic surgeon. "Sure, I'm a bride," she confided. "His name? He's A. Lackey, a small merchant in New York. Sells dress; lives at the Park Central; 18 years old, and never before married." She is 40 and has a son, Bert Tucker, 22, who also is on the stage.

EXECUTIVE CHIEFS TO CONFER TODAY

Governor-Elect, at Capital, to Get Facts on Financial Situation at the Penitentiary.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 3.—Governor-elect Henry S. Caulfield arrived in Jefferson City last night for conferences today with departmental heads, and particularly with A. H. Harrison, Director of Penal Institutions, and Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Education.

While the purpose of the Governor's visit was not officially disclosed, it was the understanding that the Penal Board desired that Caulfield before taking office, should know exactly the financial situation at the State Penitentiary, where there are approximately $600,000 in past due bills remaining from the Baker administration.

The penitentiary on several occasions has been one of the big builders taken over by an incoming Governor, and this year it is particularly heavy, due to the extravagance of the Penal Board when Dr. Cortez Enloe was director.

It will be recalled that two years ago a Senate Committee conducted a long investigation of the prison, and reported that it found irregularities justifying the removal of all members of the board. The carrying out of the recommendation was prevented when seven Democratic Senators bolted their party caucus and went to Gov. Baker's assistance in his defense of Enloe and the other board members.

When Harrison became head of the institution two years ago, there were past due bills of more than $1,000,000. By careful management, cancellation of unequitable contracts, and reduction of the materials and goods on hand, he has brought the total down to something around $600,000.

Caulfield, it is understood, will obtain first hand information of the inventory now being made and of the exact state of the finances of the prison, information he is said to consider necessary to provide him with the knowledge he needs in making his recommendations to the Legislature.

The new Governor is interested in the question of the efficiency of the educational system of the State, and before presenting his views to the Legislature will discuss with Superintendent Lee the latter's views, and the program he plans to submit to the Legislature.

ALMA RUBENS, IN COURT PLEA, DENIES SHE HAD WILD PARTIES

Movie Actress' Trial on Disturbing
Peace Charge Set for Jan. 8;

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 3.—

Alma Rubens, motion picture actress, pleaded not guilty in Municipal Court here yesterday to a charge of disturbing the peace. The complaint was issued Monday at the request of Mrs. M. Uhl, owner of the house in which Miss Rubens lives, and neighbors of the actress, including Leroy Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fox and Rita Carewe, all connected with the movies.

Miss Rubens waived a jury hearing and trial was set for Jan. 8. The actress denied that she had had any wild parties, but admitted that a young man visitor might have talked loudly. The complaint alleged that neighbors were disturbed by loud and "wild" language from the Rubens bungalow and by "wild parties."

Following her appearance in court, Mrs. Uhl said she did not wish to press the charges. The deputy prosecutor in charge of the case was absent, but court attaches said that when he was reached, the case probably would be dismissed.

$5,342,349 SPENT BY DEMOCRATS IN LAST CAMPAIGN

Contributions, Including $1,600,000 Loan, Were $5,444,958—G. O. P., Expended $6,256,111.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The Democratic National Committee submitted to the House today its report of contributions and expenditures during the recent campaign, listing expenditures of $5,444,958.43 and contributions, including loans, aggregating $1,600,000, of which $5,342,349. The statement showed a balance on Dec. 31 of $102,608, but, as has been announced, the committee has a deficit of approximately $1,500,000 because of the loans.

The statement received today from James W. Gerard of New York, treasurer, was accompanied by reports of finances from the regional headquarters. The report of the national committee showed under a heading of an accounting of Jesse H. Jones that between Jan. 1, 1928, and July 10, contributions aggregated $418,750.98. Disbursements during the period from June 1 to July 10 on the account of Jones amounted to $250,262.58 which left a balance of $168,475.30 reported to Gerard on July 11.

One hundred and forty-four thousand one hundred and twenty-four friends of the Republican party contributed $6,541,748 to the National Committee from June 24, last, to Dec. 31, on which date a balance of $285,637 remained, indicating disbursements aggregating $6,256,111. Four years ago the committee collected $4,860,479 and expended $4,270,469 and had a balance of $110,010.

A report of the committee's finances was made yesterday by its treasurer, J. R. Nutt of Cleveland, O., to Chairman Lehbach of the House Campaign Expenditures Committee.

Nutt's statement listed the amount expended for administration and expenses of the Republican National Committee during the period as $3,529,178, exclusive of funds returned to state committees and allocated to other committees. Explaining the manner in which the funds were handled, Nutt said that "in many states we made an agreement with the state committee to have one solicitation for contributions for the state and national committees."

In cases where contributions paid to the national treasurer, he said, he acted merely as agent for the state committees and returned to the state committees their proportion of collections, the percentage varying in different states.

The statement showed $116,000 was placed to the use of the Republican Senatorial Committee and $228,500 was given to the Republican Congressional Committee.

PARAGUAY-BOLIVIA TERMS OF ARBITRATION SETTLED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Terms of a protocol of conciliation for the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay were agreed upon today at a meeting of the Pan-American Arbitration Conference's special committee and the instrument itself was prepared for signature by the delegates of the two countries late in the day.

The Bolivian Government today had instructed its delegate to accept the protocol of conciliation with some slight modification. The protocol remains in substance the same as it was originally drawn in the special committee's meeting Christmas day. Mexico was agreed upon today to replace Argentina as one of the countries which would have appoint judges on the international conciliation panel to investigate and mediate the dispute. Argentina refused such an obligation on the ground that she was already mediating the larger question of Bolivia and Paraguayan boundary relations in the Chaco Boreal region.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 3.—Brazil will not participate in the negotiations for settlement of the current Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary dispute, the foreign office announced this afternoon.

Archbishop of Canterbury Worse.
CANTERBURY, England, Jan. 3.—A recurrence of the inflammation with which he suffered has retarded the recovery of the Archbishop of Canterbury who has been ill for some days.

ADVERTISEMENT KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave his patients for years.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 50c and $1.00.

Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," even worse, pneumonia, if you take care of it at once. Musterole on the congested throat and how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation brings welcome relief.

DOUBLE TROUBLE QUICKLY ROUTED BY NEW KONJOLA

Stomach and Liver Troubles Had Defied Everything Tried Until Modern Medicine Was Found.

What remarkable experiences, what wonderful recoveries are described in the stream of testimonials and in the glowing achievements of Konjola, the new medicine, which is now within the reach of all in St. Louis.

TOM LUBSKI

This modern medicine of 32 ingredients is being explained and its astonishing triumphs pointed out by the Konjola Man, who is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, this city. There those who suffer from stomach and liver troubles are invited to hear—not promises and claims—but the good news of Konjola's success in even the most stubborn cases that have defied and baffled all efforts to find relief.

Konjola strives for just one thing—results. Konjola is not designed to give a mere temporary relief; Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressants. It is a medicine that Nature herself might have compounded, for it contains the juices from 22 roots and leaves of medicinal value. Wherever Konjola has been introduced it has caused a quick and complete relief from suffering that made life miserable for me. Some time ago my stomach failed me and became very disordered. Gas formed after each meal, and I felt so bloated that I dreaded to think of the next meal, which meant only more suffering. My stomach was sluggish and brought on many spells when I had to hold onto something to keep from falling. I never obtained the required amount of sleep and often felt as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. My condition was rundown in general and each attempt of mine to find relief was rewarded with failure only.

I was told about the new Konjola and watched the papers for the announcements. These led me to give a new medicine a chance, but at first I had only the faintest of hopes in any medicine after my long hunt for relief. But Konjola proved exactly what I needed. Within a short time my stomach regained its normal functioning, digested perfectly now and I feel better. I sleep, eat and feel better. I am ever more grateful to the master of this wonderful change.

Now Konjola works, surely and quickly. Quick results came because of 22 ingredients of Konjola go to work without delay, cleansing and purifying the system and paving the way for the return of health so long sought in vain.

The Konjola Man is at the Walgreen Drug Store, 515 Olive street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine. Konjola is sold also at the Walgreen store in East St. Louis, samples given.

SUPREME COURT REOPENS DISPUTE OVER OIL LANDS

Sets Aside Injunction Which Blocked Inquiry Into Title to Property Held by Standard Co.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The controversy over the ownership of an important section in the Elk Hills naval reserve in Kern County, California, was reopened yesterday when the Supreme Court set aside an injunction which had restrained the Secretary of the Interior from inquiring into the title to the land held by the Standard Oil Co. of California.

The question at issue, as explained by the Court, involved whether the land was known to contain minerals at the time it was surveyed and claimed by the State of California as a part of its school lands.

Congress, by a resolution, authorized an inquiry in 1924 into the question of the ownership of the section, but when the then Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Hubert Work attempted to proceed with the investigation, the Standard Oil Co. obtained from the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia an injunction restraining him from doing so. This court held that Albert B. Fall, while Secretary of the Interior, had taken action which precluded the reopening of the question of title. His action was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, but was reversed yesterday by the Supreme Court.

Fall acted without authority. In an opinion by Justice Brandeis, to which there was no dissent, but in which Justice Stone did not participate because he had officially acted in the matter while Attorney-General, the highest court declared that "when Secretary Fall undertook to determine, not as a fact whether the land was known to contain a mineral in 1903, but as a proposition of law that, because of other conceded facts, the company's title had become unassailable, he acted without authority; and the order of dismissal based thereon did not remove the land from the jurisdiction of the department."

The Supreme Court emphasized that the inquiry which Secretary Fall should have directed should have gone into the question whether the land was of known mineral content when surveyed. It declared that Congress never intended that the Secretary of the Interior should have authority to pass on the State's claim to the land regardless of its known mineral character, asserting that in taking such a position the Secretary would nullify the expressed intention of Congress that mineral lands were not granted to the State.

When California was admitted to statehood the land in controversy was a part of the public domain to which she was entitled for school purposes, provided on survey it was found not to contain minerals. In 1903, after survey, the United States declared the land mineral in character and California offered to select other land in exchange.

Included in Oil Reserve.
California contended that in the following year, 1904, the Government restored the section to the public domain, when it was opened to selection as school land. In 1909 the land was withdrawn temporarily from entry by the Government, and the next year was reserved by the Secretary of the Interior pending legislation by Congress. In September, 1912, the land was included in the oil reserve.

cluded in the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve. The Standard Oil Co. obtained possession of it in 1910 and nine years later discovered oil on the section.

Under yesterday action by the Supreme Court, the Secretary of the Interior now will be able to inquire fully into the title of the Standard Oil Co. to the land, the decision depending on whether the land was of known mineral character at the time it was surveyed by the Government and claimed by the State.

STUDENTS BURNED TO DEATH
Two Perish in Fire at Dallas; Three Buildings Destroyed.

By the Associated Press.
DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 3.—Two Baylor University medical students perished in flames which burned three dwellings here yesterday. The dead: James H. Martin, 28 years old, Hascia, and Samuel R. Scott, 23, of San Antonio. J. Malcolm Daniels, employee of an automobile supply company, leaped to safety from a second story porch. The Rev. J. B. Daly, 83, retired minister who lived next door to the building in which the students were burned to death, was suffering from shock and exposure.

ALLSTATE TIRES

For the first time in the history of the automobile industry there is a tire with an unlimited mileage guarantee! And it's the ALLSTATE! No limit as to mileage! No restriction as to time! Only a tire as good as the ALLSTATE, only a store as great as the "WORLD'S LARGEST STORE," could offer such a guarantee! More than any definite mileage guarantee, because we leave it to you to say how far they should go. Actual road tests have shown that ALLSTATE TIRES are as good as the best known tires in AMERICA. We did not want to limit them to 15,000 or 16,000 or even 17,000 miles.

ACCUSER OF WIFE IN POISON CASE BETTER

J. W. Edwards Likely to Recover Use of His Limbs Doctor Says.

James W. Edwards, 61-year-old carpenter of Poplar Bluff, Mo., who charged that his state of collapse and the paralysis of his hands and feet were due to poison given him by his wife, Nora, 24 years his junior, is showing marked improvement at Baptist Hospital, according to physicians, and probably will again be able to walk.

Tests are still being made at the hospital to isolate the poison, if any, responsible for the widespread inflammation of Edwards' nervous system, and for the paralysis.

Dr. D. S. Booth, who is treating Edwards, issued the following today at Edwards' request: "We believe that Mr. Edwards will recover the use of his hands and feet. We have not been able to find poison so far but this does not mean that the patient was not poisoned. His condition, under certain unusual circumstances, might have been caused by malaria or some other disease, but there is no evidence of any disease that we can find. If his condition was caused by poison given to him—such as arsenic or bichloride of mercury—it is possible the poison was eliminated by physical processes before he was brought to the hospital, while the effects of the poison remained. We are continuing our tests to find poison."

Edwards was married last July 2 to the woman he now accuses of poisoning him. Three weeks after their marriage, Edwards' son, Forrest, 15 years old, became ill and died in 10 days. Dr. James Stewart, State Health Commissioner, looked into the facts of the boy's death, and immediately requested exhumation of the body and an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

O. A. Tedrick, newly installed Prosecuting Attorney of Butler County, has taken over the investigation of the Edwards' poison case and will proceed with the exhumation of the body as soon as arrangements have been made with a medical expert from St. Louis.

Mrs. Edwards is at liberty under $2000 bail. Dr. Stewart has recommended investigation into the death of Mrs. Edwards' first two husbands, and of her 12-year-old daughter, Ethel May, who died four days before her mother's second marriage.

JOHN D. JR. OFF ON VACATION OF 3 MONTHS IN EGYPT

Denies He Plans to Renew $10,000,000 Offer to Establish Museum in Cairo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—John D. Rockefeller Jr., his wife and their youngest son, David, sailed last night on the Italian liner Augustus, for a three months' vacation in Egypt.

Others in the party were Dr. James H. Brewster of the University of Chicago, who is in charge of the Egyptian excavations conducted by a foundation established by Rockefeller. Dr. Brewster's son, Charles A. Murray Dyer, Dr. Benjamin H. Rutledge, Miss Mary T. Clark and Robert H. Gumbel, Rockefeller's secretary.

Rockefeller appeared to be annoyed when reporters questioned him about the purpose of his trip. It was thought that he might be planning to renew his offer of $10,000,000 for the establishment and maintenance of a museum of Egyptology in Cairo, which was rejected by King Fuad in 1926.

"Has your visit anything to do with the museum project?" he was asked.

"No, no," he replied quickly. "It hasn't. My trip has nothing whatever to do with that. We are simply going for a rest."

OILY RAGS REPORTED FOUND IN STORE FIRE

Four Families Upstairs Driven Out by Flames at 2204 Franklin Avenue.

Police are investigating the circumstances of a fire causing $2500 damage at a dry goods store at 2204 Franklin avenue at 2 a. m. today. Firemen reported they found oil-soaked rags in the store.

Four families occupying apartments on the second floor were forced to leave the building and seek shelter in neighboring homes. The store is conducted by Harry Brownstein and his son, Morris, who told police they knew nothing about the origin of the fire.

Four families occupying an apartment house at 5991 Ridge avenue were aroused at 1:30 a. m. when fire broke out in a pile of rubbish near the furnace. The damage was $350.

An electric spark from a printing press started a fire which caused $5500 damage at the A. R. Fleming Printing Co., 204 Olive street, at 10 o'clock last night. The spark ignited paper.

Ervin Gebbert, 24 years old, was burned on both legs when a can of gasoline standing near a stove at the Mount City Boat Co. at the foot of Franklin avenue, caught fire. Other employees extinguished the flames, which caused about $50 damage.

STORES CLOSE PAY PHONES IN DISPUTE OVER DIVISION

Illinois Bell's Demand for 77 1/2 Pct. of Receipts Attacked in Chicago.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Profits running into millions of dollars annually accruing from public telephone stations, are the object of a fight which developed here between downtown business establishments and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

Declaring a boycott when the telephone company decided to discontinue splitting profits with them, drug stores and other business houses discontinued service at 6000 of the larger stations in their buildings. The telephone company notified the establishments that they would receive only 22 1/2 per cent of the receipts hereafter and refused the store owners' offer to submit the matter to arbitration.

In some stores and hotels an effort was made to collect 10 cents for calls which the telephone company paid was illegal. In other places the booths were locked.

DEMOCRATS STILL UNREPRESENTED IN MAYORALTY RACE

Executive Committee, Directed to Make a Selection, Has Not Met to Consider Subject.

SEVERAL MENTIONED FOR THE POSITION

Many of Minority Party Expected to Back Kiel Against Miller in G. O. P. Primary.

With two major Republican candidates already in the race for the mayoralty nomination and a third contender trailing them, the Democrats of the city are in the anomalous position of having done nothing decisive toward selecting a standardbearer to compete with the winner of the Republican elimination contest.

At the last meeting before Christmas of the Democratic City Committee a resolution was passed directing the Executive Committee to confer with Democratic leaders outside the committee on the choice of a candidate. So far the Executive Committee has not met and apparently the party is as far as ever from a selection of a strong candidate.

Meanwhile, the campaign plans of Mayor Miller, Republican candidate for re-election, and of former Mayor Kiel, Miller's predecessor, who seeks his fourth term, are rapidly taking shape. The third candidate, Stephen M. Wagner, former president of the Board of Education, also has launched his campaign, with only a nominal chance of success, however.

Democratic Apathetic.
The absence of a vigorous candidate for Mayor on the Democratic horizon is the political observation made by the wide-spread conviction that either Mayor Miller or former Mayor Kiel will be nominated and that nomination on the Republican ticket virtually is equivalent to election.

In the last mayoralty campaign, with former Congressman William L. Igoe, an exceptionally strong candidate, bearing the Democratic banner, Mayor Miller was elected although by the slim margin of about 3000 votes. For the coming year no Democrat of Igoe's proportions has shown himself.

Another consideration in the creation of the present situation is the apparently widespread intention of Democrats to vote for Kiel in the Republican primary. This alignment, which may have considerable weight in determining the result of the Republican primary, results not only from a definite antagonism toward Miller on the part of many Democrats, but also from an equally definite liking for Kiel.

Miller is remembered by hundreds of Democrats as the man who defeated one of the strongest candidates ever put forth by the minority party, and as a chief executive whom with Democrats have not gained audience as easily as Republicans.

Minority Party Members Like Kiel.
Kiel on the other hand has a strong following among Democrats whose liking for him dates back to the old days of the House of Delegates when a Democratic member named Kiel, then in his first term as Mayor, an affable and easy confidant, years ago, Kiel has played pinhole with Democrats, attended the funerals of Democrats and spoken at meetings of organizations whose members were predominantly Democratic.

Among Democrats who have been discussed for the nomination of W. Frank Carter, attorney and friend of Kiel. Carter, however, is definitely out of consideration as he intends to depart soon for Texas for a six-month's vacation.

Others who are discussed by various groups are Jacob M. Lash, president of the St. Louis Bar Association and leader in the successful campaign to elect three Democratic Circuit Judges and a Democrat, Erastus Wells, banker, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and son of former Mayor Rola Wells; and former Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDann, who has tentatively indicated will run but who has shown evidence of having organizational support.

The last filing day for candidates for the primaries is Feb. 2. The primaries will be held on March 2 and the election on April 2.

River Front Improvement To Cost $80,000,000 Sketched By Harland Bartholomew

Reclamation of Land From Mississippi to Provide Downtown Airport and Park Part of Program.

A plan for the improvement of the Mississippi River front north of Merchants Bridge and south of Lemp avenue, at a cost estimated roughly at $80,000,000, to be undertaken 20 or 30 years from now when the proposed central river front improvement is completed, was outlined by Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission, at the Commission's January meeting at Hotel Melbourne last night.

To execute the scheme, more than 2000 acres of land would be filled and reclaimed from the Mississippi River north of Merchants Bridge to create a park larger than Forest Park and a Municipal Airport larger than Lambert-St. Louis Field and only 10 minutes from the heart of the city; the Third street elevated highway would be extended north and south to create a riverside speedway from Chain of Rocks to Jefferson Barracks; and a yacht harbor and marine park would be created in South St. Louis east of the City Workhouse.

Plan to Reclaim Land.
Bartholomew outlined his plan with the aid of preliminary sketches, emphasizing the fact that details had not been worked out, but maintaining the feasibility of the plan. With the cost of the central riverfront improvement estimated at $50,000,000, the entire river front improvement would cost upward of $80,000,000; perhaps $100,000,000 when the necessary connecting arteries and extensions were fitted into the scheme.

Under Bartholomew's plan, the city would take over the group of lands in the large bend of the river extending from Chain of Rocks to Merchants Bridge; the river channel would be straightened through low land to be purchased from Illinois; levees would be built and the island group would be filled in to a height of 45 feet above normal water level, and the present river channel would be maintained as a group of lagoons or lakes protected from high water by levees.

Of the 3000 reclaimed acres, 700 acres in the center of the area would be used as an air field 5000 feet square, directly accessible to a highway along the new river bank. Ultimately this highway would be improved with an ornamental concrete wall overlooking the river.

The remaining 1300 acres would be improved as a natural park, with the large water areas created by the old channel devoted to bathing and boating. Some of the lagoons would be large enough to accommodate yachts and high-powered boats which would have ready access to the river. Hydroplanes could land in the lagoons or in the river.

Riverfront Highway.
The park and airport would be accessible over the riverfront highway or by proposed extensions of Adelaide avenue, Calvary avenue and two or three other streets not yet decided on. The riverfront highway would continue north to connect with the Chain of Rocks Bridge, now under construction, and the Columbia Bottoms road leading on to the Lewis and Clark Bridge and Alton.

"There is nothing new about a project for reclaiming land from the Mississippi river," Bartholomew declared.

British Lord Chancellor Weds.
LONDON, Jan. 3.—The Lord Chancellor, Lord Halsam, was married at Westminster Abbey, to the Honorable Mrs. Clive Lawrence today. The greatest secrecy was taken to insure privacy at the ceremony which took place in the Poet's Corner of the Henry VIII Chapel.

GILBERT ANSWERS HIS GERMAN CRITICS
NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, arriving today on the Berengaria for his annual holiday visit, smilingly protested that German criticism of his report on reparations payments "must be based on a hasty and incomplete reading of the text."

"A German text of the report is not yet available," he said. "If it had been, I believe the comments in the German press would have been different."

Replying to one German criticism, as repeated to him by newspaper men who met him at Quarantine, Gilbert declared he had mentioned in his report the fact that the German Government had been negotiating loans abroad. The Tagblatt, in Berlin, has been quoted as saying that he had failed to mention the fact that Germany had paid its reparations up to the present, not out of a surplus on exports, but through loans.

"I said in my report that could be said on the subject," was his answer. "The trouble is that they have not yet had an opportunity to read the full text."

On all other subjects having to do with his job as Agent-General for Reparation Payments, the smiling young man who is credited with having more authority over German governmental financial policies than the Kaiser ever had, was consistently and genially uncommunicative.

FLETCHER LIKELY TO GET IMPORTANT POST WITH HOOVER

Ambassador to Italy, on the Good-Will Mission, May Be Among Chief Advisers on Latin Affairs.

SOME GOSSIP HE WILL ENTER CABINET

President-Elect's Ship Is 900 Miles Off Coast of Florida—Good Weather as He Nears Home.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD U. S. S. UTAH, on Way to Hampton Roads, Jan. 3.—The assistance given by Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy, to Herbert Hoover on his Latin-American good-will tour probably will result in his becoming one of the chief advisers to the new President in foreign affairs, particularly in Central and South American relations.

While there has been some talk of Fletcher for a Cabinet position, just what place he will have in the new administration is for the President-elect to decide and he is keeping his own counsel. However, it is known that he regards the Ambassador as one of the ablest of the diplomatic career men and is highly pleased with his work as a member of the good-will mission.

Friendly With Governments.
Since one of the major foreign policies of Hoover's administration will be the fostering of better relations with other American republics, it is expected that Fletcher's advice and counsel will be called for frequently, as he has a very wide circle of friends among the governments of the Latin-American republics.

Hoover has known Fletcher for many years and kept his eye upon his work, both in the diplomatic service in the Americas and in Europe, where he was Ambassador to Belgium, as well as Italy, having been sent overseas after a term as Under Secretary of State.

Besides representing the State Department in Chile as Minister and Ambassador and in Mexico during a delicate period of the World War, Fletcher has been a delegate to practically all Pan-American conferences held in recent years. Adept at diplomacy, breezy of manner and forthright in speech, he also has a wide knowledge of people and conditions in Latin-America and this was one of the major factors in the decision of Hoover to personally request Secretary Kellogg to let him have the services of the Ambassador for the good-will tour.

Still clipping off 15 1/2 knots this battleship bearing Hoover home after his good-will tour of Latin-America was approaching American waters today. It was approximately 500 miles due east of Florida and only a little more than 1000 miles from the Virginia Capes. Weather conditions continue good, but the trade winds are still kicking up sufficient sea to give the ship a long easy roll with some pitch.

Guests at Each Meal.
Entirely carefree, the President-elect and his wife seem to be enjoying the trip more as they swing toward the United States coast. They have a few guests in to each meal and Mrs. Hoover serves tea on deck daily while she and her husband stroll about chatting with members of their party or watching the deck games.

Coolidge and Host After Day's Hunting

DEFENDS PAPER URGING NEW CONCEPT OF GOD

Prof. Barnes Says His Address Was Not Given Before Science Advancement Body.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—In a signed statement in his own defense, Harry Elmer Barnes, professor of history at Smith College, struck back last night at the criticism directed at him Tuesday by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn because of his address last Saturday before a meeting of scientists, including members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Prof. Barnes told the scientists that modern science demanded a new concept of God and a revision of religion and that the idea of heavenly rewards should be thrown into the discard. The address aroused a storm of protest in the clerical circles and Dr. Osborn charged Prof. Barnes with making an "unwarranted intrusion" with a subject which had no place before the association.

In his reply Prof. Barnes called Dr. Osborn's statement "both misleading and unfair." "I did not, therefore," he said, "therefore, of the History of Science Society and the New York Academy of Medicine, which members of Section N of the Association for the Advancement of Science were invited to attend. The program of this joint meeting was devoted to the general subject of humanizing ern genetics with the statement of Cardinal Hayes that little children come trooping down from Heaven."

Prof. Barnes then went on to "wonder" if Dr. Osborn had ever read authorities on the subject, including "History of the Welfare of Science With Theology in Christendom," written by the late Andrew D. White, co-founder with Ezra Cornell of Cornell University.

Dr. Osborn, who is president of the American Museum of Natural History, last night said through his secretary that his statement was final and he did not intend to enter into a controversy.

Prof. Barnes' Statement.
Prof. Barnes made the following statement in a letter to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican:

"1. My paper, which Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn has designated as an 'unwarranted intrusion' into the program of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was not, in fact, given before any section meeting of that association. I did not, therefore, as Dr. Osborn has charged, take advantage of 'this great platform of the American Association for the Advancement of Science' for the expression of my personal opinion on a subject that was totally unrelated to the subjects under discussion."

"2. While I happen to be the retiring vice president of Section L of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, my paper was read at a joint meeting of the History of Science Society and the New York Academy of Medicine, which members of Section N of the Association for the Advancement of Science were invited to attend. The program of this joint meeting was devoted to the general subject of humanizing science. There were a number of papers devoted to the interrelation of the medical and other sciences, on the one hand, and art, literature, philosophy, psychology, social science and religion, on the other.

Says Church Was Recognized.
"Still further, not only religion but the holy church itself was given ample recognition. On the afternoon preceding my address Dr. James J. Walsh presented a paper upon the contributions of Catholicism and Catholic natural and medical science to civilization. My subject was, then, thoroughly appropriate and had been accepted as such for months by the program committee, and the program of these joint meetings was admirably balanced."

Travelers Returning From Alma Ata Deny He Is Ill.
By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 3.—Rumors that Leon Trotsky was sick and that he was to be transferred from Alma Ata to a health resort were denied by the authorities today, as well as by persons who recently returned from Alma Ata, where they recently saw the former head of the Red armies personally. These travelers said that Trotsky is in good health and is devoting much of his time to writing. He is also hunting in his spare hours.

Consider this plan for a right start in 1929

THE MORRIS PLAN
THE MORRIS Plan is a means of obtaining a loan in a lump sum that is repayable in small weekly or monthly amounts covering a whole year. Loans are made on marketable collateral, or, in its absence, on the basis of character and earning power. Our service also includes loans secured by mortgages on automobiles, or by first and second deeds of trust on owner-occupied homes.

Reasonable rates, prompt and courteous service, dignified and conveniently located banking rooms all help to make The Morris Plan attractive. Make The Morris Plan a part of your 1929 program.

POINCARÉ TO COPY U.S. INDUSTRIAL IDEAS FOR FRANCE

Premier and Minister Tardieu Have Worked Out Plan to Make Country More Prosperous.

WILL PUT PROGRAM UP TO PARLIAMENT

Increase of Production and Abolition of Red Tape in Government to Be Basis of Proposal.

By ARNO DOSCH FLECHOT, Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—France is to be made as modern as America in her industry, if Premier Poincaré and Andre Tardieu, Minister of the Interior, have their way. The road along which they think France can move to a new era of greater prosperity than ever before has been mapped out and the Premier will place it before Parliament when that body convenes.

He will urge that the nation cut away from its past, jettison the red tape and political wrangling that have hampered its economic progress and become a modern, money-making country.

The Premier will present a comprehensive, definite program for revolutionizing France's systems of production and communications to place the nation on a level with any country in the world in the international competition for wealth.

"Program of Realization."
This "program of realization," the constructive plans instigated by Andre Tardieu will be called, is to be offered to the nation as an alternative to the socializing reforms sponsored by the Socialist and radical leaders in political opposition to the Government.

The industrial France of the future, as envisioned by Poincaré and his colleagues, is to be patterned after the United States. The specific lines along which a more prosperous nation is to be built up are clearly drawn by the sponsors of the "program of realization."

Among the changes in French political and industrial life comprehended in the plan, all leading to general intensification of industrial activity and higher levels of production, are:

1. Decentralization of Government departments dealing with industry and commerce, thereby cutting away the official red tape inherited through from the eighteenth century down, in which French business is traditionally tangled.

2. Rebuilding of public utilities.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Judge Frey's Suggestions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is no keeping up with the Post-Dispatch in matters affecting public welfare. It is always in the forefront.

After reading Judge Frey's practical and constructive suggestions in your Friday's edition, I wrote the following comment. But before I had an opportunity to make a more extended comment, I was delighted to see your vigorous editorial in Saturday's edition, endorsing the Judge's proposals. Having written these comments, I send them on to you in case you should think them worthy of space in your valuable columns.

In seconding Judge Frey's suggestion for a law designed to detect and eliminate insane, crippled and criminal drivers and would-be drivers of automobiles, I think that the pedestrian and careful motorist-public needs protection against the many times larger number of sane, healthy, strong and noncriminal, but rather selfish, thoughtless, inconsiderate, unskilled, mechanically ignorant and irresponsible men and women drivers. While I do not have any statistics to prove that there are 10, 50 or 100 times as many automobile accidents caused by sane, healthy and law-abiding people of the above class as there are by insane, crippled and criminals, it is important to note the fact of this relationship, so that whatever remedies or preventive measures are devised, they may not overlook the 90 per cent of the evil by concentrating too deeply on the 5 or 10 per cent.

Before a railroad company or even a street car company allows a man to drive a locomotive or trolley car, they require him to pass satisfactorily an examination which is designed to disclose the applicant's knowledge of the functions of the various parts of the machine, its operation, its controls, his sobriety, hearing, eyesight and other qualities which affect his judgment and self-control under an emergency. While, in some respects, the responsibility and skill of the locomotive engineer and trolleyman is and must be greater than that of the automobile driver, yet in other respects the latter is exposed to many more opportunities for accident and therefore should be required to pass an analogous examination before receiving a license to drive a car.

There are many practical aspects and difficulties which would have to be considered in framing a proper simple law with teeth in it which could be passed against the combined opposition of selfish interests and which would accomplish the desired result of reducing and preventing automobile accidents. An influential committee of public-spirited citizens appointed by the Mayor or of voluntary organization could do much good in drafting and securing the enactment of such a proposed law, if supported by the Post-Dispatch, and I know of no one who would be better qualified to serve successfully as chairman of such a committee than Judge A. B. Frey, who combines with his civic interest a broad knowledge of the law, tempered with a practical common sense.

HARRY BORTIN.

No Law Against This.

Conditions on Earthquake Boulevard.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

M. Y. BUT these buses are terrible. That constitutes the sole complaint publicly of the weak-backed property owners in General on Page avenue. (Earthquake boulevard). The depreciation in property value accompanying publicity of this nature, keeps them from protesting openly, many of them thinking, because of weak construction points, that theirs is the only property affected.

"Constant dropping will wear away a stone." Constant pounding of these speeding mountains of steel, 21 out of every 24 hours, is rapidly undermining the foundations of every building on Page, where buses run. Procrastination never pays any dividends, neither will weak protests alleviate our conditions, but determined action will obtain quick results, and eventually, why not now?

Appealing to the bus people will get us no relief. They cannot afford to do anything. I wonder if they could afford to furnish tents to us after their buses knock down our domiciles. Perhaps. Neighborhood home protective organizations, unable to function during a crisis (yes, Romeo, it's a crisis) should be considered obsolete.

Let us protect ourselves, and do it now.

FRANK A. WILLIAMS.

Location of Third Baptist Church.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LEAVE the Third Baptist Church on Grand boulevard, where everyone can get that wants to. To move out would be almost a crime, after Dr. Porter has built it up with a picture show next door. That is very wonderful. He certainly deserves the credit. ONE WHO WANTS TO GO.

The Legislature's Opportunity

Not often is a session of the Missouri Legislature either so important or so promising as is that which began yesterday. It follows the mandate of the State Constitution and revises the statutes, as is required every 10 years. Missouri can get rid of many laws, some of them long ago obsolete, which are a hindrance to modern State government. If it fulfills the excellent promise of performance which the new Governor-elect, Judge Caulfield, has given in his personal survey of the State charitable institutions since he was elected, it will make Missouri an infinitely more responsible and progressive State.

The last session of the Legislature was disappointing, but Judge Caulfield must bear in mind that the second legislative session in any State reign is usually unproductive. It is with his first Legislature that the Governor must make his record for progress. If he permits that opportunity to pass he suffers the obloquy under which Gov. Baker is going out of office. The Governor is the leader of the Legislature. It serves the purposes of good government only so far as it is impelled by his initiative. Few men who have become Governor have enjoyed Judge Caulfield's thorough training in the public service. He knows the needs of the State, and there is no gain-saying his desire to serve them. That ought to make his administration fruitful, as it should help Missouri to gain a place among the modern states. She has no such rank now.

If objection is made that it costs money to have a state governed as New York and Wisconsin are governed, the answer is that it costs even more to keep a state as backward as Missouri is. Only parsimony with her State university has caused it to fall so far behind those of other Middle Western states, and only neglect of rural education has brought the State to her bad ranking both in literacy and educational opportunity. The Legislature should never have made education only one of innumerable suitors for State support. It should always have made that its own cause, and until it does so the State is bound to suffer. We need a modern school law, larger school districts, greater equality of opportunity for all the children of the State, and a budget for the State university that will take it out of the class of the poor schools. Why should Missouri, one of the first of the midwestern states in population and wealth, trail most of them in education?

The prompt passage by the Legislature of the enabling act to put into effect the constitutional amendment authorizing the bond issue of $75,000,000 for the early completion of the State highway system is confidently expected by the people of Missouri. A draft of the bill has been prepared. It vests in the State Highway Commission the powers and duties to carry out the provisions of the amendment. A companion measure embodying the technical requirements of the sale of the bonds, which is approved by the 300 members of the Citizens' Road Bond Committee, will be introduced simultaneously with the enabling act.

The need for action is urgent and obvious. Speedy enactment of those measures will make available for road construction this year approximately $10,000,000 additional to current revenue. With this money the Highway Department will be able to maintain the scale of operation of the past several years. Delay would necessarily mean the postponement of construction contracts and a general and costly slowing down in the effective conduct of this great enterprise.

There can be no justification for delay. The amendment proposing the $75,000,000 bond issue was discussed at length in every county in the State. Opponents and advocates were given a full hearing. The decisive majority in favor of the proposal was the informed judgment of the people. The obligation of the Legislature in the premises, therefore, is to carry out the will of the people as expressed at the polls.

The Post-Dispatch shares the public belief that the Legislature will quickly pass those two bills, as the circumstances require. Should objection develop, however, should a spirit of obstruction appear, it will be incumbent upon Gov. Caulfield, we submit, to assert his leadership and furnish proof of the executive capacity which he is believed to possess. "Carry on the road program!" That is the people's mandate to the Caulfield administration.

It is a standing reproach to Missouri that the structure of its government and the methods by which its business is transacted are anachronistic. They may have functioned well in the out-time and Ezra Meeker age, but they are totally outworn and inadequate in these high-pressure times. It is a truism to say that no private business could survive were it to employ the antiquated system in vogue at Jefferson City. The result is waste and inefficiency. Other states, notably New York, have shown the way in this important matter and it can no longer be pleaded that Missouri lacks working models from which to reconstruct its government.

The Legislature will have before it a comprehensive plan of governmental reorganization. It will be asked to pass

1. A bill establishing a budgetary system, such as is employed by the Federal Government and in various states.
2. A bill reorganizing the governmental structure, consolidating departments with overlapping or similar functions, and abolishing others.

The time for arguing the merits of the principles involved in this proposed legislation is long past. No

HISTORIC BONERS.

Another contribution to the boners of sports' history was made at Pasadena on Tuesday when Riegels of the University of California made a 70-yard run to within a foot of his own goal line in the game with Georgia Tech. The play, without doubt, will be imbedded in the ludicrous legends of the gridiron, taking rank with the lapses that have been woven into the very fabric of baseball annals.

The Homeric nod of baseball is, by common consent, awarded to Merkle of the New York Giants who, in a game with the Chicago Cubs on which the season's championship pivoted, neglected to touch second base. As we recall it, the winning run was thereby voided, and when play was resumed, after an interlude of eloquence and violence, the redoubtable Cubs waddled in to victory.

Then there was the famous $29,000 muff by Snodgrass which enabled Boston to capture the winners' slice of a World Series melon from the same luckless New York Giants.

Dim memories, these, of far-off battles, but never to be forgotten. And dimmer and more ancient still was the base-running feat of John Anderson who stole second with the bases filled and whose name one, we think, questions their essential soundness and wisdom. What is needed now is action. By passing a budget bill and a governmental reorganization bill, the Legislature will render a necessary public service.

Once again the Legislature will have before it the program of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice. This program is designed to furnish Missouri with a modern criminal code and to enable public officials to deal more effectively with the alarming increase of murder, robbery and other crimes. As is well known, the program grows out of a survey begun April 1, 1925, and participated in by representative persons and organizations throughout the State. Full results of this survey, the first of its kind ever to be undertaken in the United States, may be examined in a 600-page volume published by the Macmillan Company. It represents the best thought of the day on the subject of criminal law, and its recommendations have been embodied in a large sheaf of bills which will be presented to the Legislature.

At the last meeting of the Legislature the survey had just been made and many members were not familiar with it. In the short time that was available, however, three of the Missouri association's suggestions were adopted. A bill providing for the holding of all executions at Jefferson City was passed, but vetoed by Gov. Baker. A bill making it unlawful for undertakers to become Coroners was passed, only to meet the same fate. The third, a proposal for an intermediate reformatory for first offenders between the ages of 17 and 30, was enacted into law, but is inoperative because of failure to provide the necessary appropriations.

In the two years that have elapsed, legislators have had an opportunity to study the whole program of the Missouri association. They can make this session noteworthy by enacting it into law, thus permitting Missouri to meet modern criminality with up-to-date legal methods. It is impossible to discuss in detail all of the measures proposed by the Missouri association. Some of the most important ones, however, may be summarized.

It is a notorious fact that American criminal procedure puts the State at a disadvantage in criminal trials and that the English, from whom we have taken our models of criminal procedure, have long since junked their antiquated rules for new ones. A large part of the Missouri association's program is concerned with this phase of the problem, including proposals to shorten time for appeals, equalize peremptory challenges, simplify indictment forms, confer right of full cross-examination of witnesses, curb the power of nolle prosequi, permit comment on failure of defendant to testify, qualify women for jury service and so on.

A new set of rules has been drawn up to govern the conduct of prosecuting attorneys. One bill provides that prosecuting attorneys in counties of 15,000 or more must devote their entire time to the office. Another would permit prosecutors to employ investigators to aid them in the preparation of cases. A third and fourth would require prosecutors to attend all inquests and compel prosecutors to follow up for collection judgments on forfeited bail bonds.

Other sections of the program deal with changes in legislation regarding bail bonds, with improvements in the parole system, with the criminal insane and with the very important matter of records. In connection with the last-named the Missouri association makes this comment:

If our governmental institutions are to make satisfactory progress in their fight against crime there will have to be kept more accurate and more useful records of the operation of all of the agencies which have to do with criminal justice. At the present time in Missouri there is want of co-operation among the various law-enforcing agencies and in most cases the records of county officials are quite inadequately and frequently negligently kept.

One of the most important suggestions made by the Missouri association is that the Legislature set up a highway patrol, or a State police system, whose duty shall be to prevent and detect crime and apprehend criminals. As it is, the highways of the State form almost a perfect haven for bank robbers and others who escape from the scene of crimes in automobiles. A State police system would make it much more difficult for criminals to operate successfully in the big cities. Objections have been urged to a State police system, largely by labor leaders, who fear that such a force might be used for evil purposes, but even they must admit that in their legitimate role, State police are invaluable.

We do not ask the Legislature to swallow whole the Missouri association's program. It covers a great deal of ground and in some of its suggestions it has entered upon debatable territory. No doubt the Legislature, in its discussion of the measures, will discover means by which it can be amended and improved. By and large, however, it is in principle and purpose a progressive program.

There are other respects in which the session just beginning can distinguish itself. It can obey the plain command of the State Constitution by passing a reapportionment bill. It can by comparative study of such laws in other states deal with the moral and economic responsibility of automobile drivers. It can enable St. Louis to apply to subway building the principle of taxing benefited real estate.

Upon the whole it is a great opportunity, one that with the leadership of a Governor practiced in the public service the Legislature ought to embrace.

was for years a synonym of every dumb occurrence on the diamond.

There was a play in St. Louis, too, long, long ago, which deserves a place in the blue book of blunders. The batsman, having beaten the ball to first by a hair, continued on his way. It was a simple thing for the first baseman to retire the runner by throwing the ball to second, but he chose to chase his man. Chase him he grimly did, all the way around, deaf to the shrieking pleas of his teammates to "throw that ball." The baserunner crossed the plate fully 15 feet ahead of his puffing Nemesis, while the laughter of the fans rocked the stand.

A ballad of boners would seem to be a need of the literature of sports—an inclusive, factual expansion, say, of the mythical Casey's strikeout. Perhaps something of the sort may be inspired by Riegels' Retreat at Pasadena's Tournament of Roses.

With the new Governor and the new Speaker of the House both from St. Louis, the Legislature ought not to dally long over the rapid transit enabling act.

The Federal prohibition force in St. Louis went as far New Year's as the politicians will stand, or that is about as far as you can throw a bull by the tail.

THE PEOPLE'S LOBBY.

Honor Roll for 1928

Surveying the whole field of American life, The Nation (New York) selects for honorable mention persons and institutions that have contributed to progress in politics, administration, business and industry, drama, music, books, journalism, public service and architecture.

From The Nation.

WE give below the names of certain Americans who have during the past year distinguished themselves from the liberal point of view in one field or another. Without suggesting that these names are alone worthy of honorable mention, the editors of The Nation offer them as a group of which the United States may be proud.

POLITICS.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, for outstanding leadership of the progressive bloc in the Senate.

Norman Thomas, for intelligent and vigorous leadership of the Socialist Party, as its presidential candidate; in his vision, his program, and his personal power outdistancing both the Republican and Democratic candidates.

Alfred E. Smith, for making a presidential campaign lively, interesting and educational.

ADMINISTRATION.

The Federal Trade Commission, for its searching investigation of our public utilities and the revelation of the methods used by power propagandists to subvert public opinion in press, school, and college.

The United States Air Mail, for maintaining a highly efficient service at home and for inaugurating a route between the United States and Mexico.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY.

The Chase National Bank of New York, for continuing to do business with Russia, even though frowned upon by an ultra-conservative State Department.

Sidney Hillman, for the extension of collective bargaining in the men's clothing industry.

Josephine Roche, for bringing industrial democracy to a Colorado coal mine.

DRAMA.

Eugene O'Neill, for once more proving himself America's greatest dramatist, with "Strange Interlude."

The Theater Guild, for spreading the light of better plays by its road companies, and by its continuing demonstration that good plays, adequately represented, pay well.

Maxwell Anderson and Harold Hickerson, for their play "Gods of the Lightning," a spirited dramatization of the story of Sacco and Vanzetti.

MUSIC.

The Flonzaley Quartet, now disbanded after 25 years of distinguished artistry in the field of chamber music.

Walter Damrosch, for his pioneer work in creating a public taste for serious music by means of the radio.

BOOKS.

Sidney D. Fay of Smith College, for a profoundly important contribution to war history, "Origins of the World War."

Albert J. Beveridge, for his monumental biography of Abraham Lincoln, posthumously published.

The American Council of Learned Societies and The New York Times, for making possible the publication of the "Dictionary of American Biography," of which the first volume has just appeared.

Stephen Vincent Benet, for "John Brown's Body," an epic of the Civil War.

Mark Van Doren, for "An Anthology of World Poetry," the first comprehensive collection, in English translation, of the great poetry of the world.

Margaret Sanger, for "Motherhood in Bondage," the product of a 25-year fight for birth control.

Morris L. Ernst and William Seagle, for their thoroughly documented and intelligent study of censorship, "To the Pure."

Ernest Gruening, for "Mexico and Its Heritage," called "the classic work on Mexico of our time."

Upton Sinclair, for dramatizing, in "Boston," the story of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Wanda Gag, for a new children's classic, "Millions of Cats."

JOURNALISM.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, for 50 years of crusading journalism.

Carlotta Heals of Mexico City, for venturing at the risk of his life into the jungles of Nicaragua in order to bring out for publication in The Nation the true and colorful story of Sandino and his fight against American intervention.

The Outlook and Silas Bent, journalist, for unearthing and publishing the facts as to Vanzetti's innocence in the Bridgewater holdup.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

John Dwyer, for seeing clearly and reporting justly, in the New Republic, the Russia of today, and for continuing leadership in American education.

Harry F. Ward, for leadership, as president of the American Civil Liberties Union, in the fight against militarism in the American school.

Judge Franklin Griffin, presiding judge in the Mooney case, who sentenced Mooney to death, but who, since learning of new evidence, has been untiring in his efforts to bring about the release of Mooney and Billings.

Walter W. Morey, for inventing the tele-typewriter, and Frank E. Gannett, for sponsoring the experiments and adopting the new machine throughout his organization.

The American Trade Delegation to Russia, for its survey of economic and social conditions in the Soviet Republic.

Paxton Hibben, who until the day of his death was indefatigable in his efforts on behalf of liberal causes in general, and who was on the point of completing an authoritative study of William Jennings Bryan.

Julius Rosenwald, for his magnificent gift of $5,000,000 to help settle Jewish colonists in the Crimea and the Ukraine.

ARCHITECTURE.

Cass Gilbert of New York, for the newly completed New York Life Insurance Co. Building.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.

REPRESENTATIVE L. C. DYER of Ohio is telling with pride how his son-in-law, Daniel J. Collins, is making money in Shanghai, China.

Collins, a dentist, married Miss Mary Dyer in 1924 and the newly married couple embarked immediately for the Orient, where Collins joined in partnership with a dentist who had built up a large practice in Shanghai.

Recently, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking Government, had need of a dentist. He sent his agents to Shanghai to select one.

The agents reported in favor of Collins. The General immediately sent Collins an invitation to come to Nanking, and placed a private car at his disposal. Collins went to Nanking and treated the General for his teeth. Later Chiang Kai-shek came to Shanghai, where he was under Collins' care for a month. During the two years' stay in the Orient, Mrs. Collins has not been ill. She has a medical degree from the University of Wisconsin, from which she was graduated with high honors. She has performed several surgical operations in Shanghai hospitals and teaches pediatrics in the medical schools there.

THE new medical officer assigned to the House has another problem on his hands. First, he was asked to supply medical whiskeys prescriptions. Having found that he was unable to do this, certain members have urged him to analyze the production of the capital bootleggers. While to do so would be a health preservation service, the doctor has refused the request, explaining that he has no laboratory.

THE Senate page boys, at the annual Christmas dinner given them by the President Dawes, told what they would say if permitted to debate a hypothetical bill "to increase the pay of pages." The diminutive orators took the floor and gave their views in the best Senatorial manner. William H. Wood pointed out that with the distinguished Vice President could escape to his palatial private office and commune with his trick pipe." The Senate page had to stay behind. "The only real question," said this budding statesman, "is whether the faithful pages ought to have greater compensation, but rather how great an increase is needed to pay them for the painful ear-strain they constantly must suffer."

SENTIMENT wins over esthetics in the controversy about the location of the flagpole in the Arlington National Cemetery. The old flagpole in front of the Lee mansion was taken down recently because of deterioration and the Fine Arts Commission decreed that a new staff should be erected at another point in the cemetery. Protests were immediately made by the Grand Army of the Republic and other patriotic organizations. Secretary War Davis ordered a public hearing, after getting the views of all concerned directed that the flag should go back to the old site. This was the place chosen for the staff in 1863 by Major-General Meigs, who established the Arlington Cemetery at the close of the Civil War.

Illumination on the Farm Question

WHAT THE FARMER NEEDS. By Isaac Lippincott. (Appleton.) FARM PRODUCTS IN INDUSTRY. By George M. Rommel. (Hendrick.)

It seems probable that philosophical historians of the future may look upon the election of Herbert Hoover as marking an epoch in the social evolution of the United States. Just as we are now told that the Spanish War signified the passing of the old agricultural regime (with the vanishing of the western frontier) and the beginning of our industrial imperialism, so it may be said that Hoover's election signified the passing of the preponderance of governmental power from the political to the economic field. The emphasis upon economic concepts, the conspicuous scarcity of political argument, in the speeches of the President-elect throughout the campaign, and the promptness with which he undertook the South American tour after the people had spoken for him no doubtful word, may be signs in a great new wind that in time, may wipe out old ideas of effective government.

No doubt the vast majority of voters still think of government strictly in terms of politics, as of old, and will continue to do so for a long while. But there seems to be a new, vital meaning in the statement one hears occasionally that leadership has passed from the old-time political thinker.

The volumes above listed are well calculated to throw light upon the profound change that seems to have come over the American dream. The first, as its title indicates, deals with the solution of the farm problem, and yet it is not concerned with the advocacy of political measures. Prof. Lippincott, who is professor of Economic Resources in Washington University, and is widely known as the author of an authoritative work on "Economic Development of the United States," has not written his book by way of insisting that "there ought to be a law." From his viewpoint, there are already certain laws, not to be found in statute books, that apply to the case, and that need only to be intelligently obeyed. It is his belief, convincingly backed by his expert knowledge set forth in a common-sense way, that governmental marketing aids, such as representatives of the farmers have sought from Congress, can not solve the problem; and the reader gathers that, while political measures may doctor the major symptoms, the cause and cure of the disease itself is to be sought "in economic management." "I have laid great stress," says Prof. Lippincott, "on the question of the cost of production, showing by numerous references from Government investigations that there are incredible differences of cost even between farmers in adjacent areas, and I have urged that one way of improving the status of farmers is through such effective systems of production as will enable the high-cost farmers to reduce their expenses." * * * The reader will discover in these pages that there is no possible way of making the equalization fee operative so long as such enormous differences exist among farmers, and among farms, in the cost of production. The only hope of making the equalization fee principle effective is to take away from the low-cost farmers the advantages of their low costs. * * * Such a policy would be the greatest catastrophe that has ever befallen American agriculture. * * * There is only one hope for producers of every description: to improve methods, to lower costs, to be ready for competition when it appears."

Though the volume deals with many phases of the farm question as it has been discussed in recent years, the outstanding contribution of the author is in his practical suggestions as to how farming methods may be improved and how costs of production may be lowered.

The second volume listed admirably supplements the first, and the two might well be read together. Mr. Rommel, the author, assembled the data upon which his volume is based in the course of a survey of the problem of farm waste undertaken at the invitation of Hon. William A. Jardine, Secretary of Agriculture. In this work he had the co-operation of 13 Federal bureaus, 13 state agricultural experiment stations, 14 national scientific and trade associations and 35 industrial organizations. All crops that can be raised on American farms are given consideration. The book is printed on paper made of cornstarch serves to emphasize its meaning, and the reader is likely to be astonished at the progress that has already been made in the matter of producing valuable by-products from the waste of the old-fashioned farm. A chapter on further probable developments along this line is even more astonishing, for it seems that no limit is in sight to what can be done in this direction.

CHARLES HAWTHORNE PAINTINGS AT MUSEUM

Nearly All of the 25 Works in the Collection Have Nautical Subjects.

A collection of 25 paintings of Charles W. Hawthorne, a well-known American painter, some of which have won prizes and medals at national exhibits, was placed on display at the City Art Museum yesterday for the month. Most of them speak of the sea.

"The Fish and the Man" a portrait of a man in vest and shirt sleeves holding a silver-tinted fish, won the first William A. Clark prize and the Corcoran gold medal at the Corcoran exhibit in April, 1926. Another, "The Captain's Wife," received a Carnegie prize of $500 at the 1924 exhibit of the National Academy of Design. The portrait is that of a woman dressed in black, which contrasts sharply with the pallor of her face and hands. Still another, "The First Mate," won the Corcoran silver medal and the second William A. Clark prize in 1924.

The fact that Hawthorne was most successful in depicting nautical scenes and figures is proof of the influence of Cape Cod life on his work. The fishermen of that district and their families are his favorite models.

But he delights in delicate blends of pastoral colors as well, as witness "The Sun Porch," which shows a woman clad in vivid yellow which sets off the shades of light seeping through a half-open door. There is also "Morning Sunlight," in which a young woman in negligee is seated beside a French door which permits the sunlight to filter in. "Early Moonrise" portrays a woman in a scarlet dress. Here the sea motif is again apparent, with a hazy background of shore and ships.

"The Boat Steer" is a vivid portrait of a sea-faring man. He is dressed in yellow oilskins, and Hawthorne perhaps attains the most action in this painting, which discloses the eager, watchful light in the pilot's eyes; the tense position of his hands on the wheel.

In "The Clipper Ship Captain" one sees a very old man. Several portraits are markedly similar in theme and treatment, such as "Lucille," "The Little Rose Girl" and "Little Girl of the Village."

The Museum has in its permanent collection one of Hawthorne's works, "Adoration." His paintings have been exhibited here several times before.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. STAGE censorship in New York seems to be around the corner. It seems that producers who fought it have come to believe the stage must be purged to survive. This season marked the high tide of shameless passages and gestures. Even I flamed red; and ask anyone what that indicates. While it was generally true only clean plays endured, there were certain producers who continued to exploit sheer muck with a disgusting bravado. Everything was put across with a crude and raw vulgarity and nothing was left to the imagination.

It is agreed the theater has become broader minded. Fifteen years ago a single defamatory name caused many ladies to swoon in the aisle at the production of Clyde Fitch's "The City." But most people still believe sewage should run under ground.

A stage cluttered up with nude ladies has been no novelty on Broadway for several years. The old wheeze of the fellow waiting on a Broadway corner for a re-acting Godiva because it had been so long since he saw a horse is not an exaggeration of the times. Censorship or jail is needed, if anyone asks me—which they won't.

A COUPLE of slightly squiffed gentlemen in silk hats asked a blind street corner piccolo player the other night for the loan of his piccolo. One of them expertly rendered several tunes as a crowd gathered while the other passed his hat. Quite a sum was wheedled out of spectators.

You are not so poor now," said the hat passer, stuffing a roll of bills into the blind man's hand. "Nor so blind, either," replied the beggar, lifting his black glasses to bestow a sly wink.

ADELAIDE KALKMAN, CHURCH AND CONCERT SOLOIST, DIES

Funeral Saturday; She Sang Many Leading Roles in Musical Festivals; With Sousa in 1904.

The funeral of Miss Adelaide Kalkman, for years a well-known soprano soloist in church choir and concert work here, will be held at 9 a. m. Saturday at St. Mark's Catholic Church, Page boulevard and Academy avenue. Miss Kalkman, who was 70 years old, died of a complication of ailments yesterday at her home, 1347 North Euclid avenue.

She received her vocal training in European conservatories. One of her longest choir engagements was in the Church of the Messiah, then at Locust boulevard and Garrison avenue. She took the leading soprano part in various musical festivals and concerts, including those of the Choral Symphony Society. In the World's Fair season of 1904 she sang with Sousa's Band. Her nearest surviving relatives are a nephew and two nieces. Uncle of Viscount Lascelles Dies.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Frederick Canning Lascelles, an uncle of Viscount Lascelles, husband of Princess Mary, died yesterday, aged 70. He was a retired commander of the Navy. His one son is Alan Lascelles, assistant private secretary to the Prince of Wales, while one of his four daughters, Blanche, is the wife of Lord Lloyd, high commissioner for Egypt and the Sudan.

TO WED SATURDAY

MISS RHODA MORRIS.

MISS MORRIS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Morris, 5391 Pershing avenue, and Charles B. Wittichell of Dallas, Tex., will be married at 8 o'clock Saturday evening at the Forest Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Edward Lau of Kingsville, Ont., who have been visiting Mrs. Lau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Krause of the Versailles apartments, Rosebury drive and Skinker road, have returned to their home. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lau's brother, Horace Krause, who will remain with them a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Drescher have taken possession of an apartment, 533 Clara avenue, until April 1, when they will return to their home in Edwardsville, Ill.

The date of the Court Costume Ball, which was to have been given Saturday, Jan. 12, has been advanced one day, to Friday, Jan. 11. It will be held in the gold ballroom of Hotel Jefferson and supper will be served in the adjoining banquet hall.

The Program Committee met yesterday and set 11 p. m. as the time for the grand march. Returns for tickets may be made to Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., 47 Portland place, at any time before the ball.

Awards will be made to men and women guests who attend in the most effective, the handsomest and the most authentic costumes. Guests are asked to dress as characters of the French Court from the period of Louis IX to Louis XVI.

The proceeds of the function will be used by the Art Alliance to establish a foreign scholarship fund for the St. Louis School of Fine Arts.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS ELEANOR FILLEY RICHARDS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Richards, 5352 Washington boulevard, has chosen Valentine's day, Feb. 14, for her marriage to William Hugh Cunliff. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richards and will be followed by a reception.

Because of mourning in the bride's family, the arrangements are to be simple, and the guests limited to members of the two families.

Included in the list of out-of-town guests will be Mrs. Howard Spaine of Tulsa, Ok., and Mrs. David Little of Rochester, N. Y., both of whom will be members of the bridal party. Mrs. Little was Miss Eleanor Richards, and with Mrs. Spaine has visited Miss Richards frequently. The other members of the bridal party will be announced later.

Mr. Cunliff and his bride will make their home in St. Louis after a wedding trip.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Cunliff, 15 Windermerne place.

Mrs. Lella Chopin Hattersley of New York will arrive in St. Louis Sunday, to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Orthwein, 11 Beverly place. Mrs. Hattersley, who is an authority on contract bridge, and whose new book, "Contract Developments," will be published soon, will lecture at the St. Louis Woman's Club Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and before the Junior League Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock on contract. The Junior League lecture will be given in the league's clubroom, 4914 Maryland avenue.

Monday evening Mrs. Hattersley will be the guest of honor at a dinner party to be given by William Victor Jones at the St. Louis Country Club, and Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. James McCluney will entertain a group of friends at dinner in her honor at their home, 4917 Pershing avenue.

Mrs. Hattersley's visit has been shortened because of her lecture course in New York and the series of articles to be written for a magazine.

Miss Rhoda Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Morris, 5391 Pershing avenue, has announced the bridal party to attend her at her wedding Saturday to Charles B. Wittichell of Dallas, Tex. Miss Marjorie Grable will be maid of honor, and Miss Carrillon Fox, Miss Arline Muckerman, Miss Jean Lungstrass and Miss Edith Stockton, bridesmaids.

Frank Wittichell of Dallas will be his brother's best man, and Henry Griesedieck, George Duncan James Powers and Abner Hauck, groomsmen.

The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the Italian room of the Forest Park Hotel, Father Tucker of the St. Louis Cathedral officiating. A reception will follow.

Among the pre-wedding parties for Miss Morris was a bridge luncheon and shower given yesterday by Miss Fox. This afternoon Miss Muckerman will give a similar party at her home, 3133 Hawthorne boulevard, and tonight Mrs. Paul Lungstrass and Miss Jean will have a dinner for the bridal party at their home, 5 Wydown terrace. Miss Stockton will be hostess at a bridge luncheon and shower for Miss Morris tomorrow, and in the evening Mrs. Morris' brother, Henry Griesedieck, will entertain the bridal party at dinner at the Coronado Hotel.

The dinner to have been given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lane, has been canceled because of mourning.

A number of entertainments are being given this week in honor of Miss Olive Moffitt, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt, 48 Kingsbury place, and her fiancé, Joseph Willett Holiday, whose marriage will take place Saturday. Last evening Miss Grace Moulton and her brother, William Moulton, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moulton of Brentmoor, members of the bridal party, gave a dinner party at the home of their parents, and yesterday at noon Miss Martha Strickler, another of the bridesmaids, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Strickler, 6310 Fauquier drive, was hostess at a luncheon.

Today Mrs. Samuel Candier Dobbs III of Atlanta, Ga., who arrived this morning to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Craig Frampton, 7814 Westmoreland drive, will give a luncheon, and this evening Mr. and Mrs. Horton Watkins of Clayton and Warren roads will entertain the bridal party at dinner and the theater. Mrs. Watkins is a sister of the bridegroom-elect.

The calendar of parties for tomorrow includes a buffet supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gardner at the home of Mrs. Gardner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boogher, 6241 Waterman avenue. Mrs. Gardner is a cousin of Miss Moffitt.

The ceremony will take place at the Moffitt home at 8 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

RARE BUCKET ORCHID COMING INTO BLOOM

Shaw's Garden Displays Panama Species Which Contains Nectar.

The first Panamanian bucket orchid to flower in St. Louis is coming into bloom at Shaw's Garden. The odd petals are expected to open fully tomorrow and display, for a brief 48 hours, the "bucket," half full of fragrant nectar, whence it takes its popular name.

This was one of the many rarities which Superintendent of the Central America last year. Possibly it is a variety hitherto undiscovered. Taken without the bloom, it was thought to be the "coronatus" variety, named for the late Charles W. Powell, donor of the famous Powell Orchid Garden in the Canal Zone to Shaw's Garden. That orchid, however, has a clear yellow flower, while this is a deep brown.

It is one of the "ant nest" orchids, precious finds to any collector because scarcely any amount of even "gold"—American money—will persuade a native to face the ants which infest this kind of orchid. Thousands of stinging ants make their nest in the roots, probably feed it with the chunks of humus which they take home, and certainly protect it from careless hands.

Nest on Display, Without Ants. The globular nest may be seen with the flower, in the alcove house adjacent to the floral display house at the garden, but the ants have been eliminated. In it is the branch of the tropical tree on which it was found, 25 feet above the ground, and the marks of the native's machete can be seen. The machete marks indicate prodigious strokes, and the inference is no mistake. That native, being related, was in a hurry. He whacked loose the branch with the ant nest, slid down the tree and made for the nearest water. Being and a companion tossed a noose over the nest and whipped it into the water, giving the ants plenty of time to float away before they had it out again.

Curiously, other plants had taken root in the nest, 25 feet above the earth, they customarily grow in. From the rounded mass of orchid roots protrude, besides the bowl-like bucket orchid plant, the slender spike of another variety of orchid, a cactus bearing a scarlet fruit, a rubber plant, and two gracefully trailing pepper plants.

Blossoms Hang Below Nest. Four blossoms hang on a slender stem, a good three feet below the ant nest. The weird shape, as the horticulturist explained, is merely a device to make bees assist in pollination. The insects are attracted by the fragrance of the nectar. They alight on the long stem and crawl down to a rough knob in the top of the flower. As half a dozen of them scramble on this knob, apparently intoxicated by the scent, some of them are crowded off on a sort of toboggan slide and get a ducking in the nectar bucket below. They cannot fly with wet wings, and, by the only way they can crawl out—a ladder with three steps—cover themselves with pollen, which they carry to another orchid, as soon as they can dry their wings sufficiently to repeat the performance.

DEMPSEY TO MEET WINNER OF ELIMINATIONS, SAYS NEW YORK PAPER

FORMER HOLDER OF TITLE HAS ALREADY AGREED TO FIGHT AGAIN

Sangor Set Down For 30 Days for Foully Morgan

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 3.—JOE SANGOR, Milwaukee boy, who won a 10-round bout, according to the newspaper men's decision, over Ted Morgan, junior lightweight champion, here, New Year's day, has been suspended from the ring for 30 days by the State Boxing Commission, because of the low blow which he hit Morgan in the fourth round, it was announced.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The New York American says today that Jack Dempsey definitely has agreed to return to the ring in quest of the heavyweight championship he lost to Gene Tunney in 1926. Promoter Tex Rickard is expected to announce the Manassa Mauler's return next week from Miami.

According to the American, Rickard's statement will say: "That Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the impending elimination tournament, and that the match will decide the rightful owner of the championship left vacant by the retirement of Gene Tunney."

"That the match will be held at New York during August or September, depending on the length of time it requires Dempsey to get in condition."

"That he feels the public will agree that Dempsey, as a former titleholder, should not be required to fight his way through the tournament."

Dempsey on Way South To Visit Tex Rickard

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion today was en route to Miami, Fla., for a "visit" at the sickbed of Tex Rickard, convalescing from an operation for appendicitis.

Dempsey took time, before boarding his train last night, to deny there was any "professional significance" to his meeting with Rickard. He reiterated former denials here that he is to re-enter the ring.

"Of course," he added jocularly, "if the boys in Rickard's various elimination bouts appear unworthy of wearing the heavyweight crown, I might get itchy for the game and do a little light boxing."

Dempsey had just returned to Chicago from Detroit where he spent New Year's going over some "matters" with his old friend, Floyd Fitzsimmons. The ex-champion denied also that he is considering going into the race track business in Michigan or elsewhere.

A hint of Dempsey's business in Detroit was contained in the report that Fitzsimmons had been surveying available sites for an open air arena for boxing contests in the motor city. It is rumored Dempsey may back his old friend in this project.

Striking Sharkey Bout Will Not Be Postponed

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Although it will be at least a month before Tex Rickard can take up the heavy burdens of organizing and handling his heavyweight extravaganza at Miami Beach, there will be no postponement of the date for the Sharkey-Strilling quarrel which is set for Feb. 27.

Word came from the stricken promoter last night to this effect: The irrepressible Tex, from his hospital bed, told Mrs. Rickard to convey to Colonel Hammond, general manager of Madison Square Garden, the compliments of the season and an announcement that the fight will positively take place according to plans and specifications worked out by Rickard before he was suddenly "kayced" by Kid Appendix.

Princeton plays the Nichols Club in Buffalo tonight and will go from there to Ann Arbor.

WILLIAM MULDOON, Real "Iron Man"

Life Story of the 83-Year-Old Athlete and Trainer

Real Opposition for Wrestling Titleholder Disappeared During the Eighties—Records Indicate He Was Undisputed Champion.

By Ed Van Every, Of the New York Evening World Sports Staff.

CHAPTER XVII.

GOING into the late eighties such rivals as had been regarded as worthy of disputing Muldoon's claims to the wrestling supremacy were now being displaced by some worthy newcomers.

Bibby and Bauer were in virtual retirement. Miller had passed his best days by the time he returned from a stay of several years in Australia. And Whistler, probably the most dangerous rival of the lot, had been dead for several years. Tom Cannon, the Briton; Joe Acton and Evan Lewis, were now among the most noted of the new generation of Muldoon rivals.

Lewis, better known as "The Strangler," and who is not to be confounded with "Strangler" Ed Lewis of present-day prominence, was a cruel and really dangerous athlete. He had deliberately broken the ankle of one opponent and severely injured several others. But the original "Strangler" Lewis, though deservedly recognized as the catch-as-catch-can champion, never came to be very proficient as an exponent of the Græco-Roman style. Acton of Philadelphia had proven himself something of a whirlwind, but he was only a middleweight. Cannon was at his best as a Græco-Roman artist. Muldoon disposed of this challenger in two matches contested within a few days of each other.

Lewis, better known as "The Strangler," and who is not to be confounded with "Strangler" Ed Lewis of present-day prominence, was a cruel and really dangerous athlete. He had deliberately broken the ankle of one opponent and severely injured several others. But the original "Strangler" Lewis, though deservedly recognized as the catch-as-catch-can champion, never came to be very proficient as an exponent of the Græco-Roman style. Acton of Philadelphia had proven himself something of a whirlwind, but he was only a middleweight. Cannon was at his best as a Græco-Roman artist. Muldoon disposed of this challenger in two matches contested within a few days of each other.

Cause of Two Matches.

IT WAS in the People's Theater, Cincinnati, that these two encounters took place, each time before a packed house. Aug. 18, 1888, was the date of the first struggle. The second match was due to the fact that there was considerable argument and some dissatisfaction over the deciding fall in the first one.

Muldoon took the aggressive in the first bout of this first match, and while he had Cannon in dangerous straits there was no fall in the first 15 minutes. After a short rest the battle was resumed and the champion soon had his man in a combination half-Nelson and hammerlock. Cannon was forced to bridge and then Muldoon, by a dexterous twist, secured a front double-Nelson and the Briton was forced to succumb. The time of the bout was 18 minutes.

Again, in the second bout, the first quarter of an hour went by without result, but after the rest period Cannon assumed a strong offensive and worked on the champion with such vigor that Muldoon was forced into a defensive bridge. After a hard struggle Cannon got a lock from which his opponent was unable to escape, and he won the fall in 21 minutes.

Cannon was giving an excellent account of himself in the third and deciding bout. He escaped from numerous threatening positions, but the finish came with surprising suddenness. Cannon had been compelled to bridge, and in an effort to escape by rolling out of danger, it was claimed by the referee that both of the Briton's shoulders had touched the floor. Cannon and not a few of the spectators took noisy exception.

A Capacity House.

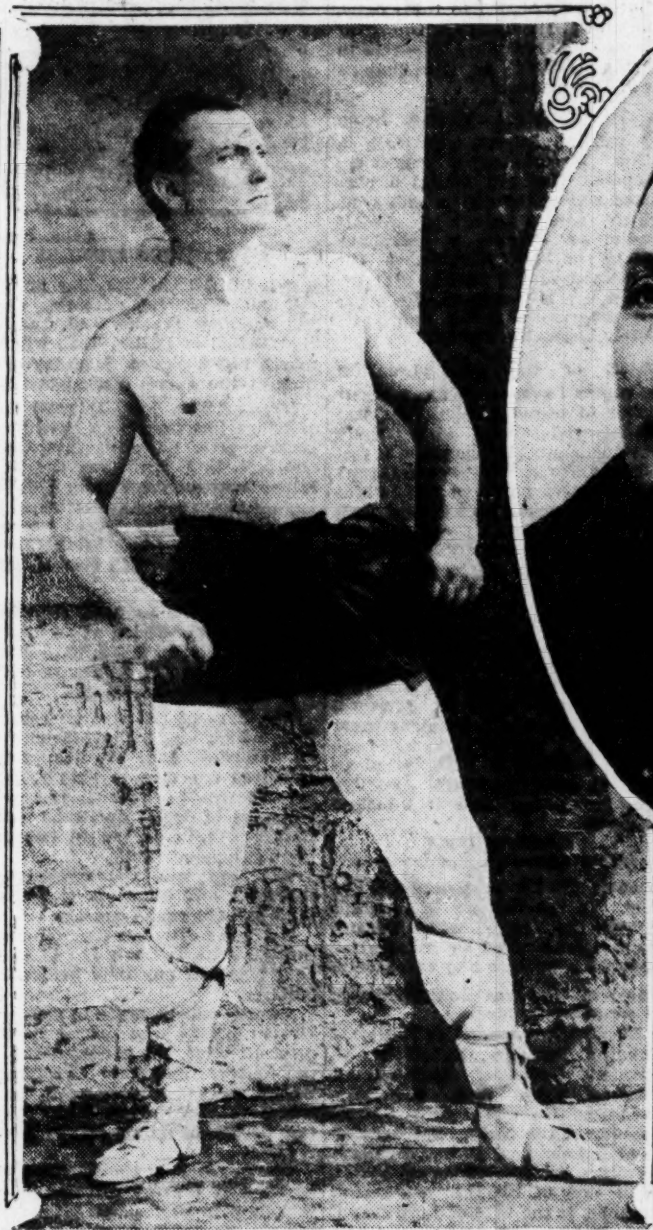

SO when they came together three nights later the show house was packed to capacity and more than 100 persons were crowded on the stage. It was believed that Muldoon had run into a snafu which he could not settle. But this time Muldoon proved to the satisfaction of all present, and to the disgust of the foe, just who really was the better man.

Cannon made a fine show of aggressiveness and uncovered plenty in the way of genuine wrestling science. He secured several likely holds, one a full-Nelson, which for an instant made him look the winner. But the champion was in fine form and did not seem in the least distressed by the best Englishman could unleash. Muldoon gave a show of skill and strength that brought forth a veritable storm of applause. He hurled Cannon about like a sack of oats and broke holds that the wonder was that the Briton was able to get up at all.

He jammed his man down, "we read," "with an irresistible heave that seemed threatened to push Cannon through the floor of the stage."

A rest of 10 minutes did Cannon little good. The fight seemed to have been pretty well taken out of him in the first bout. Muldoon gave him not a moment of rest and in slightly over five minutes Cannon was flattened out on the mat and completely done for. The champion was accorded a tremendous ovation and the noise did not let up until he had signified his assent to their demands for a speech.

Very graciously he explained that his form was not in the best of condition for the match.

AS THE FIGHTING GAUL © J. FALK 1888 FROM ALBERT DAVIS COLLECTION

otherwise he would have been seriously extended. Cannon, however, felt his defeat so keenly that he walked off without shaking the hand of his conqueror.

Muldoon was now approaching a stage in his career as a wrestling champion where there was no rival who figured worthy enough to give him such opposition as would place his title of Græco-Roman champion in jeopardy. However, there was a young German-American, Ernest Roeder, coming along. He had so impressed the champion that he was already attached to Muldoon's troupe of athletes. A few years later this young German-American was to succeed Muldoon as the champion. How this came about will be left for telling in the next chapter.

Second to No Other.

HOW great an athlete was William Muldoon among the wrestlers past and present? In Græco-Roman, which is probably the severest test in physical grappling and grips, a style that depends little on trickery in throwing an opponent off balance, or on torturing leg or toe hold, but is a matter of the extreme in strength and skill in the science of leverage and muscle control against the unimpaired power of the man before you—William Muldoon, if not the greatest of all exponents of this type of wrestling of which he was the champion for more than 13 years, at least, was second to no other man past or present.

For he was king in a day when the sport of wrestling was at its height. And while it may be that there were some whom even Muldoon could not have downed in a finish match of two out of three falls, none of them, there is good reason to believe, could have so vanquished Muldoon.

Of course, there are insinuations of framed matches and hippodromes aimed at the Muldoon renown, but even if the character of the man did not make such charges absurd, it is safe to depend on the word of those in a position to know best, that such insinuations are without foundation. The nearest thing that might be open to question by distrustful is that it seems to have been a fact that "plant" matches were arranged as a part of the champion's barnstorming.

This is what is meant by a "plant." Several weeks in advance of the appearance of the champion at some particular town, a visitor would come along who could easily be persuaded to admit that he was a great wrestler. Naturally, the question would come up as to whether he dared to tackle the great Muldoon. And, naturally, the answer would be that the visitor had no respect for Muldoon or any one else. This was by way of setting the scene for the appearance of the champion, and also, in event of none of the local champions being able to screw up sufficient courage to tackle the great Muldoon, that there would be some sort of an opponent for the champion's exhibition. But whether there was anything beyond a requisite showmanship in this is not plain. In fact, the matter would not be worth mention, only that it is the aim of this narrative to show that there is nothing in the life story of William Muldoon that needs glossing over.

Advance Man Still Alive

FRANK SMITH, who is still alive, and who was the "advance" wrestler for the Muldoon jaunts for several years, is still capable of giving you any kind of an argument you are looking for if you care to insinuate that Muldoon needed to ask favor of any man in a wrestling match.

Muldoon, it is true, was on the verge of defeat, a couple of times, only his opponent never knew it. "In some of my matches," he told me not so long ago, "I have been so badly used up that it seemed to me that I did not have another ounce of strength left to carry on."

"How did you manage to keep going?" I wanted to know. "I'd think to myself," was the answer. "Well, if you are all in, how tired do you think your opponent is?"

Out of these barnstorming jaunts came stories galore of the adventures of the "sold man." It would take a bulky volume to carry them all but one which had wide prominence at the time deserves retelling.

One night out at Pueblo, relates John Cuddehe, who had wrestled the champion during one of his first trips West, Muldoon came across a weeping woman and three children sitting on the doorstep of a rather notorious combination gambling den and saloon. This incident also happened in the dark of night and had real ten, twenty and thirty cent drama touches.

The woman in distress told Muldoon how her husband had taken their entire savings of more than $1500, had gone into the gambling house the day before and had not been seen since. Muldoon told the woman to stay where she was until he had time to look into the matter. Into the place went Muldoon and finally found a man in a tuxedo whom he recognized from the wife's description as the one he was seeking. Muldoon succeeded in rousing him sufficiently to learn that he had been cleaned out. Then he went up to the proprietor of the place.

Gets the Bankroll. "I AM Billy Muldoon," said the champion looking his man square in the eye. "That man over there has been drugged and robbed and I am here to get back what belongs to him."

As he spoke he grabbed the drinker by the wrist and gave it a twist. "I want a look into your safe," he said in answer to the man's protests, and he gave another little twist to the arm which brought a gasp of pain from the victim. He dragged him to the safe and found the door open. Inside lay a roll of bills with a rubber band around it. The proprietor made a grab for the money, but another twist of the wrist quickly brought a change of mind.

Muldoon took the roll, grabbed the robbed man and led him outside where the champion turned over both husband and money to the wife, and then departed without waiting for thanks or explanations.

Presumably Muldoon returned the right bank roll. Copyright, 1929, by Press Pub. Co. (the New York World.) (Another chapter tomorrow.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 3.—St. Paul Hawks went into a tie for first place with Kansas City in the American Hockey Association by defeating St. Louis here last night, 3 to 2, in an overtime game. The winning goal came with St. Louis one man short and as a direct result of one of the famous Goheen rushes, who skated through the St. Louis team and then passed to Ingram who counted at 7:52 in the overtime session.

St. Louis displayed a complete reversal of form. The Flyers came from behind on two occasions and the tying goal was scored with but a second left to play. It was made by Headley, who did one of his solo dashes and beat the St. Paul defense with ease.

The Hawks were handicapped from the very start. Andy Mulligan, star defense man, was injured during practice when Stark, St. Paul goalie, hit him over the eye with the stick in trying to ward off a shot. Mulligan was taken to a hospital and will be out of the game for some time.

St. Paul is Overconfident. In contrast to the New Year's day contest, the game was slow and rather dull at times. St. Paul was overconfident and stalled around after scoring a goal at 10:48 in the first period.

The Flyers were desperate and taking advantage of St. Paul's loose playing, rushed the puck into the Hawks' territory on numerous occasions. Stark was called upon to make some great saves but he could not turn back all the drives and Goyer finally broke through after taking a pass from Headley to even the score.

Not until the third period was three-quarters old did the teams show any life. With fresh forward lines, both teams did carry fast skating but the Hawks carried the puck and Wilson passed out to Capon to give St. Paul a 2 to 1 lead. Victory appeared certain for St. Paul. The Flyers were rather disorganized but the break finally came. Headley who had been making solo dashes throughout the period, finally skated around Nichols and the tying goal was scored with less than a second remaining.

Breen, Cameron and Anderson starred for the visitors. Goheen, Ingram and Rommas did the best work for St. Paul.

TIGER BASKET TEAM MEETS BUTLER TONIGHT

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 3.—The University of Missouri basketball squad and Coach George Edwards left late yesterday for a two-game exhibition series in Indiana. They play Butler University in Indianapolis tonight and the University of Indiana at Bloomington, tomorrow.

A tentative starting lineup composed of lettermen players Harry Welch and Herbert Ruble as forwards; Wendell Williams, center; and Capt. Justin Roach or Marshall Craig and John Waldorf at guard positions.

SANTIAGO TO BATTLE CANZONERI, JAN. 18

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—James C. Muller, matchmaker for the Coliseum Athletic Club, announced today he had signed Armando Santiago, the Cuban, who stopped Joey Sangor in two rounds, to meet Tony Canzoneri of New York, in the main event at the Coliseum on Jan. 18. Canzoneri is the former featherweight champion who dropped his title to Andre Routis of France.

Blackburne Will Change Cissell's Swatting Style

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—MANAGER "LENA" BLACKBURNE plans to get a bumper crop of base hits and sparkling field plays from the "123,000 White Sox peaches," Bill Cissell, next season.

Cissell, obtained from Portland last winter for $123,000, failed to hit and field for that amount of money during the 1928 campaign, but "Lena" still insists he is a "find" and intends to prove it.

Blackburne intends to revolutionize Cissell's hitting and fielding. He plans to make a "punch hitter" out of him instead of letting him take a full swing and to teach him to wait for the bounce instead of "stiff arming" the ball.

FRANK SNYDER SIGNS TO MANAGE HOUSTON IN 1929

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 3.—Frank ("Pancho") Snyder, who resigned last October as manager of the Houston baseball club of the Texas League because of salary differences with President Fred Ankenman of the league, signed today for a second year as manager of the Houston Club.

Details of how the differences were patched up were not made public.

The Houston club won the Texas League and Dixie series championships last fall.

ROOSEVELT AND SOLDAN FAVORED TO WIN GAMES

By Harold Tuthill

If pre-season form holds true, Soldan should defeat Cleveland at Beaumont and Roosevelt should win from Central at Roosevelt in the opening City High School League basketball games Saturday night.

Soldan and Roosevelt own impressive practice records. The South Siders have won six straight contests, while Soldan has won five.

Cleveland's strength is unknown because the Carondelet school has played only one practice game, losing to Maplewood, 25 to 13. Cleveland showed a noticeable lack of ability to score field goals.

With McLaughlin and Bernhardt at the guards, Fenenga's team should present a capable defense against Soldan. Both players are veterans. Bernhardt will be lost to the squad after the January graduations.

Wee Earl Jensen and Bieher will be the forwards at Cleveland. Jensen is a clever floor man and a sure shot from the floor but his size is against him. Bieher's play is erratic. Fenenga has been using Ketterer at center in scrimmages.

Soldan's record speaks for itself. Coach White's five has scored 146 points against opposing teams' 60. In three of the contests Soldan has scored over 30 points, whereas in the other two the West Enders were never hard pressed to win.

The lineup that has been starting for Soldan is Levy and Gelber, forwards; Helmhich, center; Joyce and Cook, guards.

Beaumont gets an extra week in which to prepare for the campaign.

Pittsburg Beats Drury

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 3.—The Pittsburg Teachers defeated Drury here last night, 30 to 29, in a slow basketball game. At half time, Pittsburg led, 9 to 6, defensive work constituting most of the first half play. Clifford Breithaupt, Pittsburg forward, led his mates in a last-half rally by caging seven baskets.

PONTIAC, Mich., Jan. 2.—The game, at times slow and unimpressive, and at others filled with brilliant basketball, the Walter Pontiac nosed out the St. Louis Americans here last night, 31 to 30, in the first of a two-game series.

The game was snatched by the St. Louis Americans in the second half, but Pontiac held on to win by a one-point margin.

Waiters hopped off in the first minute of play, and never behind, although the game was knotted on three occasions. Two brilliant shots by "Dutch" Lemieux, Pontiac forward, two-thirds the length of the floor, and a striking overhead toss by Krakovitch, from back of center, featured the game.

The Americans were unable to get the locals' defense in the first period, a long shot by Krakovitch, and a charity toss by Krakovitch, giving them their only points in the first period. Pontiac led 12 to 7 at the half, 12 to 7.

Foul Throw Decides Tie. Only in the third period did the visitors outplay the local team. With their offense functioning perfectly for about five minutes, the Americans crashed through four baskets and added a couple of points via the free throw line, cutting Pontiac's margin to a single point.

Krakovitch's long heave won minute to play in the final period. On the following jump the two centers reached for the ball, and Krakovitch, before they were parted by officials and teammates, a foul was called. Cissell missed while Lilleman made good on an attempt for the point that put the local team its sixth straight victory of the season.

WAGONER PLACE WOMAN TELLS HOW WELDONA CONQUERED RHEUMATISM

Suffered Four Years With Arthritis or Rheumatism of Joints—Joints Creaked and Snapped LARGE NUMBER VISIT LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE

"For four years I suffered with arthritis or rheumatism of the joints," says Mrs. Alice Carey, who resides at 1901 Wagoner place, St. Louis. Mrs. Carey continued: "The pain was very severe in my hip and difficult for me to bend my neck because of the stiffness.

"I naturally had tried many remedies without benefit and finally decided to give Weldon tablets a trial. I am glad I did for in a short time the pain and stiffness left me so that I am now able to stoop down without trouble, sleep well, and the creaking and snapping has left my joints. I am very grateful for the wonderful benefit I have received from Weldon tablets. I am absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

$1000 reward to anyone proving this testimonial is not genuine.

Weldon tablets are always put up in a box—never in a bottle. Ask for Weldon tablets, which are recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only. Weldon tablets are absolutely harmless and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ.

The Weldon representative who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page fully illustrated and interesting book, entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," which is absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

MRS. ALICE CAREY.

I was unable to stoop because of the difficulty of straightening up. It was very difficult for me to bend down to lace my shoes, and it was painful for me to attempt to get up after sitting any length of time. My knee joints, as well as my arms, creaked and snapped, and it was

"Cold Coming"

WHEN you feel that cold coming on—head it off with Bayer Aspirin. Almost everybody knows how these tablets break-up colds—but why not prevent them? Take a tablet or two at the very first sign of a cold and spare yourself a lot of inconvenience and suffering. Do the same when a headache threatens, or when you feel the least twinge of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or similar pain. Bayer Aspirin is sure relief, as many have discovered. It is quite harmless, as physicians have long declared. It does not affect the heart, so you may take Bayer Aspirin freely. Use as a gargle for sore throat, to remove the infection. You can get the genuine at any drugstore. Bayer Aspirin. Bayer on every package and on each tablet identifies the genuine.

LABOR OPPOSES STATE
CONSTABULARY PLANMissouri Federation Favors Highway Police Only for Patrol Duty.

The Missouri State Federation of Labor and the Brotherhoods of Railway Conductors, Engineers and Firemen will support the establishment of a State police force for highway patrol purposes only, George R. Patterson, secretary of the State labor body, announced.

Patterson said the State Federation of Labor and the railway brotherhoods had reached an agreement with the State Highway Department and the Safety Council to support the measure establishing State police for highway regulation and for the purpose of apprehending criminals operating on the highways.

"Labor is opposed to the establishment of a state constabulary, such as Pennsylvania has," he said. "Our support is given to a highway patrol only, and our suggestion is that the proposed patrol force operate under direction of the Highway Department. The necessity for enforcing highway regulation is unquestioned."

Patterson took exception to Attorney-General Shartel's plea for a constabulary force. "The Attorney-General says such a force would be used for catching criminals, and not for interference in strikes and labor disputes," Patterson said. "How does Shartel know what the constabulary would be used for once it is established? 'Labor has had unpleasant experiences with State 'Cossacks' in Pennsylvania and Colorado and we in Missouri do not want them here. A State constabulary, such as Attorney-General Shartel proposes, would be a mobile force, which could be shifted about the State to the scene of every labor dispute, and the striker or labor disputant would be brow-beaten and subjected to indignities, as he has been in Colorado and Pennsylvania."

Patterson said the labor bodies will support the establishment of a highway patrol when the proposed bill is presented in the Legislature, but will vigorously oppose all constabulary measures.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL

especially the ports through which France's foreign trade passes.

Rebuilding of roads. Development of potential hydro-electric power and electrification of the country. A series of constructive works, including the building of a railroad across the Sahara.

Remapping of Paris so that the avenues and boulevards will extend miles further than at present. Modernization of the city in every respect with particular attention to its rapid transit facilities.

Poincaré's First Step. For this program, Poincaré will ask Parliament to give him a vote of confidence. He will ask, also, for a solid Republican bloc in the Chamber of Deputies, which will stand ready to back the Government in carrying out these changes which he thinks will increase the industrial efficiency of France and its capacity for creating wealth. Prosperity will be the keynote of his appeal for the country's support, an idea and a slogan borrowed directly from the United States. The interest which France has taken in the last few years has been shared by many of her statesmen and has led to aspirations toward the same prosperity that the United States enjoys, if not to actual imitations of industrial methods.

Woman Sentenced on Drug Charge.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Miss June Boyd, whose arrest grew out of the investigation of the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler, was sentenced to serve a year and a day in prison, following conviction in Federal court yesterday on a charge of violating the anti-narcotic laws. Federal agents, who found documents in Rothstein's effects indicating he financed a ring of narcotic dealers, raided Miss Boyd's apartment here and seized a trunk filled with the drugs.

WHO IS GUILTY?

Match Your Wits With the Author and See if You Can Unravel This Mystery—The Correct Solution Will be Printed in The Post-Dispatch Friday.

THE MYSTERY OF THE FIVE BANK DIRECTORS.

By Evalyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer.

"WELL," said the Chief of Police, "four of these guys insist they never laid eyes on Battle all day today, and Colton says he just spoke to him for a moment and passed on into the other room."

"They're all so respectable and prominent, too," said Inspector Brady.

"I'll go up and look over the lay-out," observed the Chief. "Some one else must have done it. I can't believe that one of the directors of the Nineteenth National Bank murdered the president. Of course the finger-prints on the handle of that murderer's knife will tell the tale. Lucky thing he was that he didn't carelessly Snyder had a swell thumb print. He took finger-prints of all the directors for comparison. He ought to be back with his report pretty soon."

"Pretty neat," said Brady "making the arrest the day of the murder. But you know, one of the directors must have done it. From the time that Miss Gilman was retired, left him until he was found dead, no one got into those rooms except the directors. I wouldn't think it was so funny if it was one of those birds that croaked Ogden F. Battle. He was a swell bank president. I don't think! He must have swiped millions, and he gyped each one of them out of a pretty fancy sum. If any of them was hard up or in an awkward position, he might seize a golden opportunity."

"Colton says Miss Gilman was finishing up some work when he came in just after five. She left. He gave Battle a piece of his mind and moved on to the board room." "Did you question Miss Gilman?" "She don't know anything, except that Ogden F. was alive when she left, and that Colton turned up about five after five."

"Funny thing that they all happened to come in and go down the hall past the office one by one."

"Colton, Stoddard, Graham, Curtis and Knapp, one after the other. And they all say that Battle was sitting leaning over his desk at the far end of the room."

"Of course that big lamp was between him and them, and there wasn't much blood."

"It must have been some one he knew. He had to come and lean right over his shoulder to stick the paper knife through his spinal cord."

"He sure got it in the neck," said Brady humorously.

"Never let out a squeal," said the chief. "The Doc says the wound was right between two vertebrae and his heart action stopped right away."

"It never would have occurred to me," said Brady, "that you could kill a man by stabbing him there."

"As a matter of fact, he didn't stab him. Just drew the knife across and made one cut."

"It takes some accuracy to do that, I'll say."

"Are you sure no one else could have got in?"

"I am. Blogg, the cashier, was sitting on a bench just outside of the corridor, waiting for some one to take the absolutely anti any other way to get into them two rooms. The windows are in full sight of Market street, and on the third floor, and nobody could hide in those two bare rooms, and anyhow a kitten couldn't have sneaked out. Blogg was still sitting there when we came, and he hadn't seen a soul but those blessed directors."

"Well, let's begin and get a line on these boys," the Chief went on.

"How about looking 'em up in Who's Who as a starter?" said the Inspector.

"Shoot. Let's take them in the order they went by the office."

"Alright," Colton. Lawrence Eversham, banker; b. Darien, Conn., Dec. 14, 1875; s. Joseph Eversham and Mary Virginia (Allbright); c. ed. Groton and Harvard, 1899; m. Bk.; trustee Andover, Clubs: Manfrs. Univ., Yale. Address: 1 East 53rd St., New York, N. Y."

"Knapp, Francis Cummins, lawyer; b. Bklyn., Feb. 1, 1872; s. Porter Cummins and Mary Louise (Bryant); K. A. B. Trinity College, 1893; A. M. 1895; LL.B., N. Y. Law Sch., 1895; Admitted to N. Y. Phi Beta Kappa; Life Fellow Met. Museum of Art; Clubs: Univ. Bkrs. Address: Bar Association Bldg., New York, N. Y."

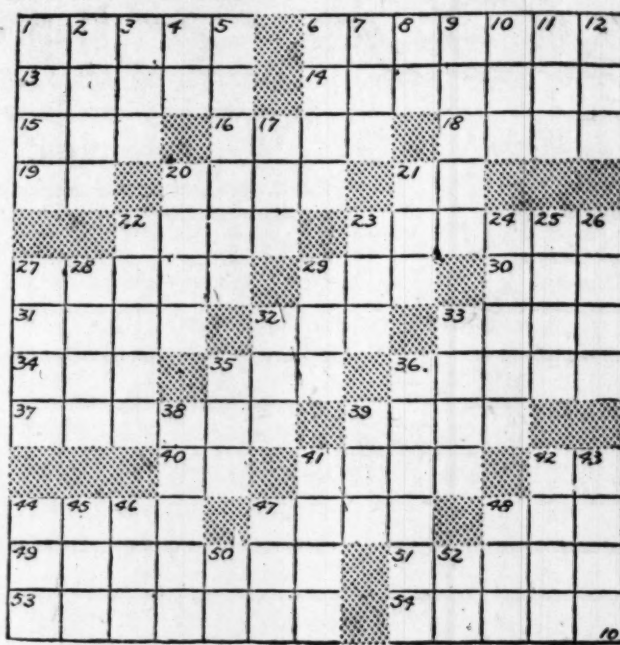

"Of course they all had a pretty good motive, if you get right down to it," said the chief, "but I'd like to know a little about their families and all. You know everybody in town. How about it?"

"Well, Colton is a society stepper. He throws big parties for any one who turns up in town with a title or a place in Newport. He and his wife are a couple of snobs. They haven't children, but they spend a fortune on polo ponies and champagne and clubs. They'd be lost if they couldn't be the whole four hundred in this town."

"Stoddard is one of these guys that lives for business. He's a fat old grouch that still goes down to business every morning at 8 and counts the postage stamps every night before he goes home. He'd rather die than be a failure. Of course, just like all the pluggers of his sort, he's got a no-account son who can spend more money in a month than he can make in a year."

"Graham is what the high-brows call a gentleman of the old school. Honor is his middle name. He'd rather be right than president of General Motors. He kicked his only son out and has never seen him again since he found out he got sent away from school for cheating. He was once in court even, for beating up a guy that told him a phony check on him. He sure is a ferocious old geezer, and the only really rich one in the bunch."

Blind Girl Does Well As High School Pupil

A SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD blind girl in the high school at Pawtucket, R. I., attends the same classes and takes the same courses as 1100 normal students.

She is Yoland Naomi Ferrarini and she has been blind for five years. Principal Lucius A. Whipple says that the girl, the first blind student in Pawtucket high school, is a student of the highest order.

Her success in her school work is largely due to her efficient use of the Braille instrument which enables her to write everything she wishes in dotted letters which she later can read by touch. The girl aspires to become a teacher of the blind.

"Chief," he said, "we have taken all the fingerprints, and who do you think it was?"

"Never mind," said the Chief. "We know who it was."

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

TWO DISAPPOINTED HUNTERS.

Some folks cannot stand a loss. Disappointment makes them cross.—Peter Rabbit.

REDDY FOX was waiting, tense and eager, to see Peter Rabbit come bobbing around the corner of Farmer Brown's barn in the moonlight. He was all ready to spring instantly. But Peter didn't come. Reddy waited only a moment or two. Could it be that Hooty the Owl had caught Peter after all? Hurriedly, Reddy turned the corner of the barn. There, perched on the top of the little house of Bowser the Hound, was a big bird. It was Hooty the Owl. But nowhere could Reddy see any sign of Peter Rabbit. It couldn't be that Hooty had swallowed Peter whole. Perhaps he had caught Peter and had dropped him on the other side of the little house of Bowser the Hound.

With all the hair along the shoulders and back of the neck sticking forward until he was very near the little house of Bowser the Hound, He glared angrily up at Hooty the Owl. "Well," demanded Reddy, "did you get him?"

"What business is it of yours whether or not I got him?" hissed Hooty the Owl.

"It's just this much my business," retorted Reddy. "It was I who got Peter Rabbit to come up here."

"That doesn't have anything to do with it," retorted Hooty the Owl. "Peter Rabbit belongs to the one who catches him."

Reddy Fox grinned and it was a mean, tantalizing kind of grin. "Then he doesn't belong to you," he declared. "If you had caught him you wouldn't be sitting around waiting here."

Of course, this was true, and Hooty knew it was of no use to pretend it wasn't. "Well," said he

as before. "It's no business of yours. If I didn't get him this time I'll get him some other time."

Meanwhile Reddy was looking everywhere for some sign of Peter Rabbit. Where he could have disappeared to was more than Reddy could understand. He couldn't see anything for Peter to have hidden under or behind. It was very mysterious. It was just as if Peter had been swallowed whole, which of course was something that couldn't happen. Also, it was quite clear to Reddy that Hooty was just as much disappointed as was he himself. The thought came to him that it would be the silliest thing in all the Great World to quarrel over some one that neither one of them had caught. Reddy suddenly sat down and began to grin.

"All right, Hooty," said he. "I agree to that. Peter Rabbit certainly will be yours when you catch him. But you haven't caught him, and neither have I. We ought to work together. Yes, sir, that's what we ought to do. We ought to help each other, so that one or the other of us will be sure to get him. I don't mind telling you that I was sure of having Peter to-night. I was lying in wait for him and in a moment or two I would have had him, had you not come along. After he ran toward the barn I couldn't see what became of him. When he didn't appear from around the corner of the barn I thought you had caught him. What became of him?"

Hooty fixed his great round, fierce yellow eyes on Reddy Fox. "I know what became of him," said he, "but I don't know why I should tell you."

"There's no reason why you should tell me, Brother Hooty," declared Reddy in his pleasantest way. "There is no reason at all. I am just naturally curious, that is all. I wonder if he could have popped into this little house you are sitting on."

"No," said Hooty, "he didn't do that. If you don't believe me, just look in there yourself."

"Did he dodge around the other side of the barn?" asked Reddy.

"No," said Hooty, "he didn't do that."

"Well, then, what did he do?" demanded Reddy.

"He just disappeared," said Hooty.

What a Plan To Stay Fat When millions die

People don't stay fat in these times when the people who care to reduce their weight are so numerous and vigorous. You can see in every excess fat is disappearing fast.

One great reason lies in a discovery some 25 years ago. Medical research has shown that a gland, the thyroid, is a great cause of excess fat in the body. When it is under-active, the food goes to fat.

That discovery changed the way for obesity with physicians. They aimed to correct the deficiency by a great medical laboratory. It has been used for 21 years and the results appeared in every clinic.

The use of Marmola does not cause abnormal exercise or diet. Such are harmful. The aim is to correct the cause. One simply takes four tablets each box of Marmola contains four tablets. One knows exactly why the goes down and the vitality goes up.

Don't let excess fat deprive you of joys of life. Use Marmola to correct cause, as so many have done. Don't wait longer. Get a box of Marmola and watch the results, then let us decide.

Marmola prescription tablets sold by all druggists at 25c a box. Any druggist who is not selling it from his jobber.

Striking News Pictures Paintings in Colors in the Enlarged Rotogravure Section Next Sunday

A ROTOGRAVURE SECTION of added size and beauty will appear in the Post-Dispatch next Sunday. This section will be twelve pages in size, instead of eight. It will contain news photographs, especially selected for their unusual interest. These will tell you the news of St. Louis and all the world in pictures that possess the clear, vivid beauty possible only in rotogravure.

Besides these photographs of general news happenings, the two paintings which won popular acclaim at the recent International Exhibition at Carnegie Institute will be reproduced in full colors. All the perfection of line and the soft richness of coloring in the original paintings is perfectly reproduced in color rotogravure.

This enlarged and finer section will be a part of the Post-Dispatch every Sunday. Enjoy the news—and the beautiful—in pictures every week in the rotogravure section of the Sunday

N examination and a vindica tion of the courage of women in Rosita Forbes's fascinat ing book, "Adventure," must make men readers thrill with satisfac tion and pride. Mrs. Forbes, as most of us know, is a young En glish explorer, who has gone all her life to some of the wildest, most dangerous and least known spots in Asia and Africa. She has made first-hand contacts with the life of Rainsui, bandit Sultan of the Mountains in Morocco. In "Adventure," she has sketched the man of her strangest and most fascinating experiences during 12 years of far-flung voyaging on land and sea, and near the beginning of the book she tells us that the voices what must be the pro test of many another successful woman—the protest against the male conviction that "a woman can't possibly do that sort of thing—some man must have done it and allowed her to take the credit!"

The best newspaper woman of acquaintance told us that, in writing "Adventure," it was the more or less general belief that her husband wrote her stories. "How they think she does it when I'm sitting at this desk and he's miles away, I've never been able to figure out," she added, with a bitter twist of her mouth. "Probably they be lieve in absent treatment."

Like Mrs. Forbes, when Rosita Forbes returned from her first im portant exploring trip, she over landed in a club, the would-be bearded masculine comment: "But of course, there must have been a man at the bottom of it. Doubtless he got the quid pro quo."

In the circumstances of heat, dirt, thirst, starvation and exhaustion, to which, unconscious ly, he referred, the suggestion was so ludicrous that I could only smile. Mrs. Forbes adds, and the reader can imagine her shrug.

HER experiences are in them selves a gleaming testimonial to the courage of woman. But she tells, with warm admiration, of the brave women she has met,
of the world; the Eskimo woman who walked up to a polar bear and plucked out of his flank a 12-year-old son's last arrow, that he might shoot it again;
an Australian mother without medical aid in the bush, who saved a 4-year-old child's life by per forming a tracheotomy, an operation which she had only read; the woman in the wilderness who killed a snake with two revolver bullets when the beast sprang; the English girl who, all alone, fought an advance field hos pital while it was being shelled and dragged into her ambulance by wounded men.

Men are generally supposed to be more courageous than women, because they have more molecular opportunities of show ing it. points out Mrs. Forbes.
I was going into danger, I thought I had a woman with me.

I think women bear not only but discomfort better than men. A woman will endure a severity of makeshift and dis comfort with patience and cour age.

Then Rosita Forbes makes this comment on the courage of women:

"I fancy there is more courage in the world than we think," she writes. "We hear about it only in a different measure to men in a different country, it be lieves in favor of women, for they to put up the hardest fight serves, health and circum

Ring's Side
By Ring Lardner

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Joe Mitchell Chapple of Boston is editing a book called "Favorite Heart Throbs of Famous People," a collection of poems and bits of prose that are the pets of various celebrities. Jim Tully's is "Ode to a Grecian Urn," and Jim says it made him realize he could never be a poet. But let Mr. Chapple tell it: "In his pocket, like many authors, Tully carried a copy of Keats's poems. From this inside nook came the worn volume, bound in old leather, resembling an old-fashioned wallet, containing the precious gems that flowed from the pen of a genius."

Now it may be that many authors carry Keats's poems on the hip, but I think Mr. Chapple meant to say many authors carry books, not necessarily books by Keats or any other poet, though the first time I met Gene Tooney he had a copy of "The Rubaiyat," which he told me he was never without. He wrote it in his glove the night he fought Henney. It made Tom realize he could never be a pugilist, and after the "battle" he (Henney) bought a complete set of Braille.

They claim Theodore Dreiser and Dorothy Thompson always see that their respective mess kits are equipped with a few volumes of one another's works and Ben Hecht seldom leaves his smugger without slipping St. John Ervine's writings in an inside pocket. Mayor Walker of New York carries a "Who's Who" in his sleeve and Herbert Bayard Swopes has his suite made up with a false lining to accommodate hotel registers of all the large cities so that no matter where he goes, he can always get a room. Several well-known cartoonists too published collections of their own comic strips and tear out a page a day and mail it to the newspaper or syndicate for which they are working. Babe Ruth keeps a treatise on dahlia culture under his cap to read while the Browns are batting, but his favorite heart throb is "After the Ball Is Over."

Eight fans of Florida, accustomed to the excitement attending hurricanes that destroy millions of dollars worth of property and Al Smith, are afraid the heavyweight elimination contest next month between Jack Sharkey and the Georgia Tentacle will prove a tame affair and have asked Mr. Rickard to engage a New York referee and a pair of judges so the bout may at least offer a surprise ending. Tex wanted Dempsey to officiate, but Sharkey objected on the ground that he and the former champ are not on speaking terms. He demands a referee he can stop and chat with in the middle of a round.

Young Stripling is on one of his incessant barnstorming tours, boxing three or four times a week with contenders from hospit's all over the country. A couple of weeks ago he scored three one-round knock-outs in seven nights and his list of recent victims includes some of the most anonymous cadavers that ever trained in a vault.

A heavyweight contest scheduled for Florida a few years ago was called off because prize fights are brutal. This one will probably be all of that, with as much action as is crowded into the last half hour of "Major Barbara."

What Some New York Notables Are Wearing
By Belle Brummel

DEBUTANTES! The town is full of them these "days. Pretty, laughing girls cluster together in the smart restaurants, trip the light fantastic and bow to society in general. On Tuesday, Margaret Worrall presided over her debutante luncheon at Pierre's. Like their pretty young hostess the guests wore cloth or velvet ensembles with separate jumpers of harmonizing colors. Here and there, one found skirts with fitted yokes slipped over silk blouses. This style, however, is a comparatively new one and like the princess silhouette is favored by only a few.

Now it may be that many authors carry Keats's poems on the hip, but I think Mr. Chapple meant to say many authors carry books, not necessarily books by Keats or any other poet, though the first time I met Gene Tooney he had a copy of "The Rubaiyat," which he told me he was never without. Mrs. Margaret Worrall favored a blouse of cream white satin with her dark skirt and small felt hat. A spray of gardenias trimmed the shoulder line of the simple and well-tailored silk jumper. Miss Grace Tingle wore a blouse of shimmering rose metal cloth with her circular black velvet skirt. A close-fitting black velvet hat, corsage bouquet of orchids, green silk hose and black suede buckled pumps were included in the accessories. Anne Rainey, another charming debutante, accented the bertha theme in the graceful white georgette collar that trimmed her dark crepe frock.

Bernice Chrysler sauntered down Park avenue in a slim elegant wrap of black velvet lavishly trimmed in red fox. With the coat she wore a brimless black felt hat, of the cap shape so prevalent and so smart. Not far behind her was Katherine Murchison, frocked in deep blue kasha duvetyne. From friends just back from Paris, we hear that blue and gray are the leading colors for spring. Miss Murchison's coat was developed in the blue that is a little lighter than navy—a tone that heads the spring color chart.

Mrs. Guenevieve Curran Jr. slipped through the stately bronze doors of the entrance to 298 Fifth avenue in a gay crimson cashmere.

Reducing may ruin good looks Extreme dieting is also dangerous to health

A FAMOUS doctor discusses the effects of extreme weight reducing on the skin. Frequently, he says, "the face takes on an anemic look. Healthy color is absent and a sallow tinge gives the distinct appearance of weariness and age." He says that the loss of only a few pounds by a middle-aged person will often "make the skin of the face wrinkled and baggy." After excessive reducing this is noticeable also on the hands.

Besides, skinniness is unbecoming. "Essentially," says an eminent doctor, "the curve is fundamental to beauty. . . . The really beautiful consists of that which is healthy and efficient." He goes on to warn us that "The craze for thinness is an attempt to modify the process of nature."

Women to be beautiful should be natural and healthy, and it is dangerous not only to good looks but to health for women, girls or men to try to standardize their weights. Eat plenty of varied nourishing foods. Everyone needs a certain amount of fat in the tissues of the body. Don't forget the value of sugar in making other foods tasteful and enjoyable. There is no substitute for sweetness as a food and flavor. In reducing, decrease the quantity of all foods, but enjoy variety. Health is necessary to beauty. The Sugar Institute.

Parisian Women Turn Down Fancy Hosiery
PARISIAN women apparently have decided to have nothing to do with shaded stockings—the kind that are unevenly dyed so that the front may be light and the back a deeper shade, or the ankle a pale pink and the calf and knee a bluish rose.

The same women have turned their backs on fishnet hosiery and hand-painted or hand-embroidered silk stockings. Most of the stockings worn here are in deep beige shades for day costumes and flesh or sunburn tints for evening.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST
By Aline Michaels

FORGET.

NOT only do the thoughts you hold assuage your care and fret, but often of a worth untold are things you can forget. Though it is wise to keep in mind the pleasures of the day, to treasure every greeting kind, each friendly smile and gay, it is as vital to let go of trouble and of care, to turn away from thoughts of woe that you, like all, must bear. There is no pang more cruel known than that of vain regret; weak folly dwells on chances flown which strength would soon forget. The past has never once returned, all earth's long ages through, however much men may have yearned to shape their course anew. But with the dawning of today new fields await you yet; then put old weaknesses away, be wise, be strong—forget!

(Wash hands often with the purifying)
toilet soap that removes germs

What U. S. Public Health Service says:

"If a germ could talk, it would tell you that nothing pleases him more than to get a free ride from someone's soiled hands to some other person's mouth."

—U. S. Public Health Service Broadcast No. 96

Don't fear Flu — fight it these seven ways Rule by LIFE EXTENSION INSTITUTE
1 Keep out of crowds all day
2 Remove germs from your hands as often as possible
3 Get plenty of rest, sleep, and eat healthful food
4 Avoid catching colds, especially in winter
5 Avoid exposure to wet and cold air
6 Avoid exposure to dust and dirt
7 Be careful to avoid contact with anyone who has the flu

KEEP flu away by fighting it, not fearing it, leading health authorities urge. Help protect yourself and your children by taking every precaution against its attack.

Always remember that hands may spread influenza, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases. Note statement of the U. S. Public Health Service on the danger of hands spreading germs.

For hands pick up all sorts of germs from things you have to touch, unavoidable things that many other hands have touched before yours—door-knobs, car-straps, banisters, money, public telephones.

The Life Extension Institute has compiled seven health rules—listed below—to help protect you and your family against the spread of influenza and other serious germ diseases.

Note especially Rule No. 2 about keeping hands germ-free—one of the most important rules of all, yet so simple to carry out. No extra trouble, no extra expense. Just wash the hands oftener—always before eating—with Lifebuoy, the toilet soap that removes germs as well as dirt.

Splendid for complexions
Quite aside from its purifying action, Lifebuoy is a delightful toilet and bath soap—wonderfully cleansing, invigorating, fine for preventing odors of body and perspiration—and for keeping complexions clear, smooth and fresh.

But, best of all, Lifebuoy helps protect health. Its mild and abundant antiseptic lather removes germs as well as dirt.

Its hygienic scent says "greater protection"
Lifebuoy's reassuring, pleasantly hygienic scent, which vanishes as you rinse, tells you it gives greater protection. Yet it costs no more—probably less than the soap you now use.

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. Start using Lifebuoy today as a common-sense health measure.

The FORTUNATE WAYFARER

INSTALLMENT XX.

THE FRIENDS AT THE INN.

"WHERE the devil had you come from?" Martin asked, "when I picked you up on the heath the other side of Thetford?"

The two men exchanged furtive glances. There was the slightest possible nod of assent from "Solomon Grant."

"About that matter," Victor Porle confided, "there is less mystery than you might think. We hesitated to answer your previous inquiry because we were still smarting from the ignominy of the affair. We had been made the victims of a practical joke."

"A practical joke?" Martin repeated dubiously.

"A most unwarrantable one," Solomon Grant growled, looking up from his plate.

A practical joke, too, instituted, if you please, by this boor of a man—Lord Ardington."

"At that moment," Martin, tempted to smile. He, of all people in the world, was capable of appreciating the plausibility of the idea.

"It had come to our knowledge," Victor Porle continued—"we were staying in Norwich at the time—that among the pictures at Ardington Hall were a reputed Ferragino, several Corots and the Van Dykes I have spoken of. There is also a scene in the private chapel brought from Italy in the fifteenth century. We addressed ourselves respectfully to Lord Ardington and begged permission to inspect these treasures at any convenient day upon which the house was open to the public. His Lordship vouchsafed no reply to our inquiries."

"He ignored our letter, in fact; damn him!" Solomon Grant observed, returning from the side-board, which he had visited in search of some bread.

"To be brief, the other event on 'we wrote again without result. We motored over here and applied at the porter's lodge. What sort of a reception we met with you yourself may imagine. Finally, from Norwich we made one last effort. We wrote again, 'd. to our surprise, we received a letter stating that a car would call for us on the following morning to take us out to Ardington.'"

"Did it come?"

"It did, and you shall hear what happened. The chauffeur—just an ordinary chauffeur he seemed to us when we started—the direct road to Ardington was up for repairs and that he would have to take us some way around. We thought nothing of that at the time, but when we had been motoring at a very high speed for more than four hours we began to feel that something was wrong. We tried to communicate with the chauffeur through the speaking tube, but he took no notice. Both the doors were locked. We were puzzled, but action on our part was almost impossible. We could have attracted the attention of passers-by, but as we were traveling at between 40 and 50 miles an hour it seemed scarcely worth while. Arrived at the spot where you found us, the car was brought to a standstill. The chauffeur unlocked the doors, invited us to descend, handed us a note and immediately drove off."

"And the note?" Martin inquired.

Victor Porle stroked his long chin.

"Ah!" he murmured. "The note?"

"The note does not concern any one except ourselves," Solomon Grant declared, helping himself liberally from a bottle of whisky which he had some time before ordered.

"In other words," Victor Porle said smoothly, "you must pardon us, my young friend, if we decline to disclose anything further. The note contained a single offensive sentence and was the sort of communication which, considering our previous acquaintance with Lord Ardington, we might have expected."

"So you actually know him?" Martin observed.

"I think we may say that we have had some acquaintance with Lord Ardington many years ago," Victor Porle assented. "It was a long way away from here and there was no question then of our friend ever occupying so dignified a position. An agreeable young man in those days, but unprincipled."

"You're talking too much, Victor," his partner warned him bluntly. "Anyway," he added, turning to Martin, "my friend and I are not accustomed to failure. We've made up our minds to see those Corots and to renew our acquaintance with his lordship. That is why we are here; that is why we intend to remain here for the present."

"It should think you'd find it difficult if he really doesn't want to see you," Martin remarked.

Victor Porle's smile was menacing. His eyes had narrowed, his tone was almost contemptuous.

"We have overcome greater difficulties in life," he said.

THE BRIBE.

THE landlady entered a moment or two later, carrying a square, blue envelope.

"I don't know the names of you gentlemen," she said. "Is one of you called Barnes—Martin Barnes?"

"That is my name," Martin admitted, accepting the note.

"From the Hall," the woman confided. "There is no reply."

Martin tore open the envelope with a muttered word of excuse, the two men watching him covertly. The contents, in a woman's handwriting, were brief enough:

"Lord Ardington will see you at 3 o'clock. Inclosed is a pass for the porter at the entrance gate."

Martin picked up the inclosure—a plain card, signed "Ardington"—in a somewhat shaky handwriting—placed it with the note in his pocket and continued his lunch. Mr. Victor Porle helped himself liberally to whisky and lit a cigarette. He stroked his chin and his narrow brown eyes seemed to be trying to bore their way into Martin's brain.

"We have been very frank with you, sir," he said, "as to our business here and our little adventure from the inconvenience of which you rescued us. We have gratified your curiosity. Return us the favor. What is your business here—your position with the household, that you receive notes from one of the inmates?"

"There is no secret about my presence here," Martin confided. "I came down to Norfolk to discuss a certain matter with Lord Ardington. I went to Norwich first and was told that he was here. This morning I was turned away from the gates like every one else, but happened to meet his niece, whom I know very slightly, and this pass came to me. I think it through her intercession."

"A pass?" Solomon Grant repeated.

"A pass to enter the domain," Victor Porle murmured.

There followed a somewhat curious silence. The window of the room was open and a pleasant west breeze brought wafts of perfume from the well-stocked flower garden outside. The atmosphere of the whole place seemed charged with peace and rural tranquility, yet Martin, not unduly imaginative, fancied that during that brief period some alien influence belonged to a more vital and intense life than any he had ever dreamed of had crept into the room. These two men of such unusual and unnatural type seemed suddenly sinister figures, their explanation of their presence bald and invented for the gulling of the simpleton. He felt his hands grow hot, his sense of uneasiness increase all the time, until he felt that he was about to faint. Then some ordinary sound—the ticking of the grandfather's clock against the wall about to strike the hour, the drone of an intruding bee—seemed to re-establish the ordinary and everyday nature of his surroundings. He took advantage of his momentary return to sanity, pushed back his chair and lit a cigarette.

"I think I shall smoke in the garden," he said, with a little vaudeville nod.

His two companions suffered him to pass out without remark, without change of expression. In the garden he found a rustic seat surrounded with a shower of Dorset roses. A little vista of meadows on his left; on his right, over the wall, a glimpse here and there through the trees of the sullen back of the great house. He made a determined attempt to thrust from his mind those two disconcerting personalities. He tried hard to think of his own affairs, to speculate as to the conditions of his visit, whether his eccentric benefactor would dismiss him with a cynical word or show any curiosity as to what he was doing with his windfall. Then again those considerations melted away, and he indulged for a few moments in forbidden dreams, the folly against which he fought, the madness from which he was absolutely convinced that his common sense would save him. Yet it was wonderful to think of her, strong and kind, gracious, masterfully sweet. The whole world of her sex dropped into nothingness by the side of her. Her very aloofness seemed natural and necessary but was sheer admiration which he felt, he told himself, devoid of a single grain of sentiment, yet he suddenly remembered the little thing, half scrutinizing, half kindly, and his pulses trembled. Away with his dreams! Mr. Victor Porle, a thin, ominous figure, had stepped out of the window and was crossing the strip of lawn. He was colorless, notwithstanding the heat of the sun and the quantity of whisky he had drunk. He moved with the quiet, silent steps of some feline animal. With a murmur of apology he took the seat by Martin's side.

"I shall venture to intrude upon your privacy for a moment," he said, "because I am anxious to engage your attention. I have a suggestion to make on behalf of my friend and myself."

"A suggestion?" Martin queried.

"It is this: We have been very frank with you—my friend and I. We have confided to you our firm intention of penetrating into the interior of Ardington Hall. Some-how or other we intend to see those pictures, and on the same occasion to have an interview with Lord Ardington."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

DAUGHTER.—Conventional mourning for a daughter or sister is the long veil, to the waist, or to the hem of the skirt, according to the preference. A young girl who is out in society or college, wears a long veil for parents, or wears a shorter, thin veil, or wears a crepe, or no veil at all. Very young girls, from 14 to 15, wear black and white for six months. They never wear veils of any sort and their clothes are not trimmed with crepe.

HARRY.—The Seven Wonders of the World are, as generally recognized in ancient times: (1) Pyramids of Egypt, (2) Hanging Gardens of Babylon, (3) Colossus of Rhodes, (4) Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, (5) the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, (6) the Colossus of Alexandria, (7) the Statue of the Olympian Jove in Greece. There is also a group called the Seven Wonders of the Middle Ages, viz: (1) the Coliseum at Rome, (2) the Catacombs of St. Peter, (3) the Great Wall of China, (4) the Leaning Tower of Pisa, (5) the Porcelain Tower of China, (6) the Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople, (7) the Ruins of the Temple of Solomon.

LEGAL INFORMATION
(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

E.—You can report the facts to the police if the annoyance is enough to justify that.

J. M.—The fact that a veteran served a term in a reformatory a few years ago would not affect his right to compensation as a World War veteran.

S. A. D.—In your opinion the charge which you describe is illegal and renders the contract void. Section 3 of the Small Business Act of 1937.

J. M. Q.—The plumber cannot refuse to work for a third person, such as yourself, unless he did it within four months after the last work was done, in Illinois.

W. T. S.—If the dealers accepted the radio when they returned it, then they cannot make him pay the balance. If they sue him, he should consult a lawyer, or the State Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

CODDY.—As to your sister having to have her husband's signature to sell the home before her divorce is granted, probably the purchaser would not be satisfied with the title to it, unless her husband signed the deed.

N. A.—If a naturalized citizen of the United States goes to Europe within five years after his naturalization and takes up permanent residence there, it is prima facie evidence, which may be sufficient for the cancellation of his citizenship.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

L. C.—Such twitching as mentioned is usually the result of some form of debility, or nervousness. It would likely be corrected by taking the Elkins' Kidney and Bladder Pills, which is taken in despondent people, and which is taken after meals, and by the systematic application of heat at stated intervals.

Lingerie Bridge Set

So new they are a novelty after afternoon panties fashioned entirely of lace save for large motifs of crepe de chine in the form of clubs, spades, etc. Other medallions are trimmed with a four-leaf clover inset. Diversity is shown in the yoke tops or the plain fitting waistlines. These are extremely dainty and are a fetching little conceit.

Drink Lots of Water Guard Against Flu

Here are four good rules to guard against the Flu: (1) Keep away from crowds. (2) Drink lots of water. (3) Eat only good wholesome food. (4) Go to bed early and sleep with at least one window open. (5) Keep your bowels open—BE SURE. The best intestinal cleanser is the one that gives you the most relief in the least time. Adierka is a line compound, known as Adierka. This acts in 1/2 to 2 hours on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only). Adierka often brings out foul matter which may have poisoned you for months and which you would never believe was in your system. Dr. H. L. Shoup, well-known New York bacteriologist, after testing Adierka on living subjects, reports: "Adierka markedly reduces the number of bacteria in the colon. In addition to its intestinal cleansing action. Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel! Just ONE spoonful gives wonderful relief in chronic constipation, GAS bloating, sour stomach and sick headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adierka will surprise you. It contains no aloes, calomel or senna, therefore setting without griping or discomfort of any kind. Adierka is sold by leading druggists in tin-folled bottles.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how they may have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true mark of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.
